PLAN TO OPEN GERMAN BANKS TOMORROW

Von Hindenburg in Berlin To Aid Straightening of Financial Tangle.

MONEY CRISIS NOT PAST

Nation Must Meet Mid-Month Payroll To Prevent Disorders.

By The Associated Press

President Von Hindenburg is back in Berlin to take a hand in straightening out the nation's financial tangle and the cabinet, by emergency maneuvers, is believed to have turned loose enough cash so that the banks may be opened to meet the mid-month payroll.

It was announced on good authority that the banks will be opened tomorrow for that purpose. Even the Darmstaedter und National bank, which suspended payments at the beginning of the week, will be opened for pay day.

Secretary Henry L. Stimson and Arthur Henderson, the British foreign secretary, are in Paris, presumably discussing Germany's situation among other things, with the French government.

London, watching developments with anxiety, is preparing for the meeting of Young plan experts on Friday at which that plan will be dovetailed with the Hoover moratorium scheme.

Washington has been advised that Great Britain, France and Italy, under the Hoover plan do not expect German reparations payments due today.

Some of the unconditional payments, it was said at the White House will be made to the international bank by Germany, but they will be loaned back to Germany immediately.

Great Britain officially advised the bank some days ago that she would not expect today's payments but France and Italy had not heretofore announced their intentions.

FACE HUGE TASK

Nation Must Meet Payrolls To Prevent Disorders.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, July 15—The German government was confronted today with the task of providing quickly and surely the most important safeguard against nation-wide disorder—currency to meet the country's mid-month payrolls.

The banks and stock exchanges still were closed and Chancellor Bruening had blanket authority from President Von Hindenburg to extend the two-day holiday indefinitely. But the wheels of industry must turn and the payrolls must be met and the cabinet was called to meet this afternoon to rush through measures for this purpose.

MARION GROUP GETS LEDERMAN BEQUEST

Former Local Man Leaves Part of $75,000 Estate to Church.

A bequest of $250 to the "Jewish Home for the Aged at Marion" is included in the will of the late Charles Lederman of Columbus, a former Marion resident, according to a United Press dispatch from Columbus today.

Local members of the Marion Congregation of Israel say that no home of this kind ever existed here nor have any plans for such a home ever been considered. They interpreted the bequest as intended for general use in the church.

The Lederman estate is estimated to amount to $75,000, under terms of the will which has been filed in the Franklin county probate court. Personal property valued at $25,000 and real estate valued at $50,000 was left to a sister, Amelia Weegner of Ostrawgo, Prussia, who has died since the will was made. This share of the estate will go to her children. In bequeathing the $25,000 to his sister, Lederman specified the desire that she give $250 each to the Jewish Orphan Asylum of Cleveland, the Jewish Homes for the aged and infirm in Cleveland and Marion, and $500 to the Jewish congregation of Ostrawgo, Prussia. The will also gives $500 to Mrs. Hannah Hechinger of New York and $125 each to cousins Samuel, Julius, Ernastine and Rosaline Lederman.

REGAINS CONSCIOUSNESS

Two Tourists Injured When Car Skids on Bucyrus Road.

Eight-year-old Conway Leeper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leeper, is regaining consciousness in City hospital this morning from a fractured skull resulting from an automobile accident yesterday afternoon on the Green Camp pike, near the Marion corporation limit.

W. L. Rogers of Rogers Bros Welding and Repair Co. at 786 Sheridan road, driver of the car, reported the accident to police. An investigation will be made by Police Chief W. E. Marks and John H. Wiedemann, city solicitor.

Mr. Leeper said this morning that the accident was "absolutely unavoidable" and added that Rogers was not traveling more than 10 miles an hour at the time.

Ran from Behind Wagon

Rogers said the child ran from behind a load of hay into the fender of his sedan which he was driving west on the Green Camp pike. The load of hay was coming into Marion.

He slowed down and pulled over to side of the road to pass the hay wagon, sounding the horn as a warning to the children he saw playing behind the wagon. Rogers said. The children were hanging on the back of the wagon and running and jumping along the road, he reported.

Conway ran out from behind the hay wagon and was knocked down by Rogers' car. He was thrown in front of the left wheel but the driver was able to stop the car before it touched the child.

Condition Serious

The boy's clothing was torn by the fender which struck his shoulder and the bumper which hit his legs. Although his condition was too serious for an X-ray exam-

RAIN BRINGS RELIEF FROM HEAT WAVE

Temperature at 97 Here Yesterday To Equal Record of Year.

STORM STRIKES TOLEDO

Precipitation Less in Some Sections Than Last Year, Weatherman Says.

Rain and cloudiness early this morning brought some measure of relief to Marion resident who yesterday and last night sweltered in the third heat wave of the summer with the mercury reaching 97 as the official temperature, equal to the highest point reached during the last heat wave late in June. At noon today the temperature stood at 86 in Marion. Rainfall this morning amounted to .12 of an inch.

The temperature today at 2 p. m. was 92, five degrees lower than yesterday's high mark. The peak of the day's heat was expected at 3 p. m.

Continued cloudiness tonight and Thursday with rain Thursday night, was the promise held out by the weatherman today for a continued partial relief from the intense heat of yesterday and last night.

Storm Hits Toledo

Rains in the northwestern part of the state were reported by United Press dispatches from Toledo this morning. Toledo suffered a severe thunder and rain storm which flooded the streets while minor damage was done by a 32 mile wind.

The drouth conditions over the state are only slightly less severe than last year according to W. H. Alexander, government meteorologist at Columbus.

Thus far crops have suffered no serious damage, but farmers were alarmed over the lack of rainfall during the last six weeks and a repetition of the disastrous drouth of 1930 was threatened in central counties, Associated Press dispatches from Columbus said today.

Near 1930 Shortage

Alexander said, however, that precipitation in other localities had been almost normal, forestalling drouth conditions as widespread as those of last summer when thousands of dollars in livestock and crops were lost.

State-wide rainfall shortage this year is only slightly less than in 1930, Alexander revealed. At the end of June, last year, the shortage was 3.21 inches. On the same date this year it was 3.19.

In central Ohio, the lack of rainfall has been greater than during the 1930 drouth. The shortage then was 3.5 inches as compared with 4.15 inches now. In the city of Columbus this year's precipitation is 7.18 inches less than normal as compared with 5.70 last summer.

Rainfall in southern counties this season is 3.09 inches below normal as compared with 7.14 inches in 1930 when they bore the brunt of the drouth damage in Ohio. No reports of a drinking water shortage have reached the state department of health. Several counties have drilled new wells to prevent recurrence of 1930 conditions.

58-Hour Sermon Sets Record in Talk Marathon

By The Associated Press

COTTON VALLEY, La., July 15—Rev. E. A. Sandifer, 40-year-old pastor of the Cotton Valley Baptist church, today had a record of preaching continuously for 58½ hours.

Mr. Sandifer started his discourse at 11 a. m. Sunday. He paused now and then to partake of raw eggs, chocolate, and coffee and once to change his shirt.

His wife said "the Lord is responsible for Mr. Sandifer holding out so long."

He had an audience that ranged from 60 in the early morning hours to nearly 1,000 in the evening. The books of Paul, the status of the church, and modern conditions in relation to the coming of the millenium, were his subjects.

When he finished he said he "felt fine."

Luck Stays With "Legs" As He "Beats the Rap" Eighteenth Time

By The Associated Press

TROY, N. Y., July 15—Jack "Legs" Diamond, who has "beaten the rap" 18 times on charges from petty crime to murder stood freed once again today, victor over the entire legal forces of New York state in a determined effort to end his gangster career with a prison term.

Arrested many times, and twice cut down by enemy gunfire, the former bodyguard of the slain gambler Arnold Rothstein again "Legs Diamond" showed his luck had not deserted him.

He was acquitted of an assault charge last night by a jury which heard the story of Grover Parks, Catskill mountain truckman, in a two day trial. The jury was out an hour and 52 minutes. Parks said he was beaten and tortured by fire by Diamond and his gang April 13, because he did not reveal the location of a mountain still after being overtaken with a load of cider on a lonely road.

The jury accepted Diamond's alibi that he was in Albany at the time, rather than the stories of Parks and James Duncan. The latter was with Parks at the time of the alleged assault.

There are other indictments against Diamond growing out of the Parks' episode. The court clipped $10,000 from the total bail of nearly $50,000 under which Legs was at liberty pending trial.

SEES EVIDENCE OF INJUSTICE

Handling of Mooney-Billings Case Denounced in Wickersham Report.

'WEAK JUDGES' DEPLORED

Public Urged To Divorce Court System Entirely from Politics.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 15—The Wickersham commission today denounced as 'shocking to one's sense of justice' the laws under which the famous Mooney-Billings case was conducted.

Embedded deep in a formal report to President Hoover on methods of criminal procedure, the commission cited the case arising from the 1916 preparedness day bombing in San Francisco as one in which motions for a new trial, "were held inadequate to prevent injustice."

It made no direct recommendation, however, that the case be reopened.

In the body of its report, signed by 10 of the 11 members, the commission concluded that the blame should be laid at the door of "incompetent, weak or politics-ridden judges" for much of the general complaint against this country's criminal procedure.

It presented a plea that the public insist upon the complete divorce of the administration of justice from politics and that the selection of judges and magistrates be made upon the ground of conspicuous fitness alone.

Lemann Does Not Sign

Monte Lemann, New Orleans lawyer, who declined to sign the commission's prohibition report, likewise refused to sign this document.

He charges the report was made without sufficient research to back up the conclusions reached, adding that "without adequate factual inquiry, generalizations by the commission seem to me likely to serve no useful purpose."

In its comparatively brief discussion of the murder sentences given Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings, for the San Francisco bombing, the commission cited the refusal of the California supreme court to grant a new trial despite the discovery of new "evidence charging perjury on the part of a material witness for the state."

Fraud Charge Cited

It cited also the refusal of the trial court of a further application based upon "the ground that the prosecuting attorney had been guilty of fraud in withholding from the trial court information impeaching testimony of certain witnesses."

Condemning this "state of law," the commission urged universal adoption of the proposed code of the American Law Institute. This would provide for granting of a new trial with the discovery of evi-

HUNGARIAN FLIERS START ACROSS SEA

Endres and Magyar Take Off for Budapest from Harbor Grace.

By The Associated Press

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., July 15—George Endres and Alexander Magyar, reserve officers in the Hungarian army, took off in their plane "Justice to Hungary," from the airport at 1:48 p. m., Newfoundland time (11:18 Marion time) on a projected non-stop flight to Budapest.

Early this morning the two fliers decided to postpone the flight until later, owing to reports of unfavorable weather conditions, but during the forenoon more promising conditions were reported and they decided to hop off about noon as they had originally planned.

Dr. James H. Kimball, weather bureau meteorologist in New York, had been keeping them informed of conditions over the great circle route, which they planned to traverse.

He notified them they would have favoring winds but that there were clouds over most of the Atlantic.

The plane had been refueled and inspected yesterday and this morning there remained only a final check up before the machine was ready to take to the air.

FALL GLAD IT'S "ALL SETTLED"

Appears in Good Humor as He Prepares for Trip to Prison.

NOW IN PALATIAL HOME

Members of Family Indignant Over What They Call Injustice of Courts.

By The Associated Press

EL PASO, Tex., July 15—His long fight to escape prison ended, Albert B. Fall, aged, and in ill health today faced a trip from the mansion he built here 25 years ago to a penitentiary at Santa Fe, New Mexico.

While his wife and daughters hovered about attending to his minutest needs, Fall sat in pajamas in a big arm chair awaiting the hour of his departure to serve the prison sentence resulting from his conviction on a charge of accepting a bribe as secretary of the interior.

He received calmly and with a flash of humor the news that his sentence of a year and a day, by a ruling of Attorney General Mitchell, would be served in the city where he began his career that carried him to a post in the cabinet.

Ready For Trip

Fall said he did not know when he would leave for Santa Fe, but he was in no sense dismayed. He said he even wished he was physically able to do all the things expected of a prisoner.

"Yes, gentlemen, I have many friends in Santa Fe," he said, as he smoked the stump of a cigar. "But I hope I won't find them in the penitentiary."

"It is a relief to have it all settled," he said. "Certainly the strain has been heavy."

Mrs. Fall and her daughters, Mrs. C. C. Chase and Mrs. Jouett Elliott, alternated between indignation at what they asserted to be the injustice of the courts in which Fall was convicted of accepting a bribe from E. L. Doheny in leasing of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve and expressions of hope that in prison he would find peace.

"It is no disgrace for him to be imprisoned," Mrs. Fall said. "He

C., D. & M. WANTS TO CUT BUCYRUS RUNS

Asks Commission for Permission To Reduce Trips to Four Daily.

The Columbus Delaware & Marion Electric Co. today asked the state utilities commission for permission to reduce the number of round trips made daily between Marion and Bucyrus from seven to four, a United Press dispatch shows.

A decrease in the volume of traffic on the road and the subsequent loss of revenue is responsible for the request to reduce the service between the two cities.

Seven passenger cars daily leave Marion for Bucyrus, beginning at 6:50 a. m. Although no special runs of freight cars are sent over the road, a freight trailer is towed behind the passenger car on the 6:50 a. m. run to Bucyrus and on the 4:15 p. m. run from Bucyrus to Marion.

The scheduled time for cars to leave Marion for Bucyrus are 6:50 a. m., 9:15 a. m., 11:15 a. m., 1:15 p. m., 3:15 p. m., 5:15 p. m. and 7:15 p. m. Cars leave Bucyrus for Marion at 8:15 a. m., 10:15 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m., 4:15 p. m., 6:15 p. m. and 8:15 p. m.

FARMERS ASK DEBT HOLIDAY

Wheat Growers of Southwest Seek Moratorium To Avoid Loss.

WORTH 25 CENTS BUSHEL

Crop Being Stored in Hope of Higher Price Within Short Time.

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 15—Wheat farmers of the southwest have turned to their bankers, implement companies and merchants for relief from debts which are forcing some to market grain at prices ranging as low as 25 cents a bushel at country shipping points.

W. A. James of Gage, Okla., president of the Oklahoma Grain Dealers' association, describes the situation as "the worst in my experience of 30 years."

Seeking a moratorium on debts that will permit them to hold their product for a month or more, farmers have carried their plea not to the government but to the influential men of their own communities.

Relief in Sight

The grain growers of northwestern Oklahoma expected at least temporary relief from a conference of their organization leaders with machinery dealers and bankers in Enid tonight.

John Manley, manager of the Oklahoma wheat growers association and E. N. Puckett, manager of the union equity cooperative exchange, are leaders in the movement to obtain a 30-day moratorium. The chamber of commerce of Larned, Kas., is sponsoring a similar plan. Texas growers, as well as those in other parts of Kansas and Oklahoma have been asked to join.

With granary space at a premium, thousands of bushels have been piled in fields and yards. Farmers say the weather loss is not great. Others, disgruntled, are plowing under their crops.

60 Per Cent Stored

In the Texas panhandle, said Walter Barlow of the Amarillo grain exchange, farmers are selling only what is necessary to pay off mortgages and other debts contracted prior to the harvest.

He estimated 60 per cent of the wheat was being stored.

Representative bankers have expressed sympathy for the movement.

Ayres Sees Hoover Plan as Likely Turning Point

Possibility of Moratorium Proposal Opening Way To Economic Recovery Most Important Phase, Cleveland Banking Expert Says.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., July 15—Col. Leonard P. Ayres of the Cleveland Trust company, in his monthly review of business made public today, points to what he calls the "most important, as well as the most pressing, question about President Hoover's proposal for a one-year moratorium on the payments on international debts. It is, he says, "whether or not it will prove to mark the turning point of this depression from which progressive recovery will proceed."

It already has been most effective in dispelling despondency and generating confidence, both here and abroad, Colonel Ayres said.

"It would be unwise," he said, "to underestimate the importance of a restoration of business confidence, but it is well to remember that the moratorium does not constitute a remedy for the business difficulties of the world.

Swing to Natural Course

"The moratorium," he continued, "is in reality an indirect resumption of international lending. Each of the creditor nations involved offers to lend to its debtors for t e period of one year the amounts of interest and principal that would normally be paid over in that time. For several years prior to our stock market boom and collapse international lending of private funds had been going forward in generous volume, and our own loans of that sort were especially great. During the most of that period commodity price levels held fairly steady.

"Then our stock speculation created so enormous a demand for credit that interest rates rose all over the world, and normal lending in the international markets sharply declined. Meanwhile Germany was under the compulsion of selling abroad so as to make payments abroad, and in order to do it she sold at progressively lower prices. Commodity price levels in the international markets declined, and nations seeking our goods, and being unable to pay for them in their goods, have been shipping their gold to us. Similar factors have sent gold to France.

Chance to Reason

"Under these abnormal conditions international trade balances, intergovernmental debt payments, and especially German debt payments, have assumed an importance altogether greater than the figures in which they are recorded would appear to justify. The moratorium gives the nations an opportunity to stop, look and reason. It gives them an opportunity to reflect on the simple economic principles that in the long run international payments, public and private, are made in goods and services, that the free flow of capital facilitates them, that tariff barriers hinder them, and that abnormal payments, like those arising from war loans and reparations, complicate them."

The reason President Hoover could not wait for full consultation with all the parties at interest before making his proposal of a debt moratorium, Colonel Ayres explained, was because of the condition of the gold reserves of the central bank of Germany. The reserves fell off a little in January, he said, and then increased fairly steadily until the end of May. But then, said Colonel Ayres, there began a veritable flight of capital from Germany and by the third week of June the gold reserves were down almost to their minimum legal limits. They were declining so rapidly that another week of loss at similar rates would have carried them down far beyond the lower legal limits.

Serves as Check

"However," he said, "on June 20 the President made public his proposal for a moratorium, and the outflow was checked, and the dangers threatening Germany's fiscal system were for the time averted.

"The President's proposal dispelled despondency, and restored confidence in Germany. It was not an emergency measure, effective in preventing a threatening disaster. It should be regarded as being only a first step in a series of international accords so directed as to grapple with the fundamental problem of this depression, which is that of continued decline of prices of commodities entering into international trade. The major steps in such a series appear to include a moratorium, and then a scaling down of international debt payments, the granting of increased international long-term credits, and the progressive lessening of the restrictions and barriers to international trade."

Conditions in the iron and steel industry, Colonel Ayres pointed out, are typically similar to those prevailing in most of the other heavy industries, and in many dissimilar lines of business as well. "The spirit of despondency, which prevailed last month, has been dispelled, and sentiment is now distinctly hopeful, if not even optimistic. Nevertheless, there has been no real increase in operating activity, though discussions are under way directed to bringing back to early action large projects which have been lying dormant. There has been some firming up of prices. With these exceptions the improvements noted appear to be mostly limited to sentiment and discussion."

He notes that operating activities of the industry still are declining, now having fallen to 83 per cent of the theoretical capacity, and so reaching a new low point for the depression.

Colonel Ayres pointed out that the formulating of policy for corporations in such times as these are intricate problems, and that there are many swings from prosperity to depression and back again during a long period of years.

Plan To Separate Church and State in Spain Strains Bond of Many Years

By The Associated Press

MADRID—The separation of church and state, as proposed to in the new constitution prepared for the Spanish republic's national assembly would terminate a relationship which has existed virtually since the Moors were driven back to Africa.

The religious question has been a vexing problem during the tenure of the provisional republican administration and promises to continue a subject for governmental concern.

Many Spanish Catholics believe, and their spokesmen and newspapers have asserted, that the republic's policies have been unfair to the church and have smacked of persecution. The provisional president, Niceto Alcala Zamora, himself a Catholic; Alejandro Lerroux, minister of foreign affairs, and Miguel Maura, minister of the interior, have denied this. They say that the republic's program calls only for equality among all religions.

MIGUEL MAURA

Most Spaniards are Catholics. And yet Spain, since the overthrow of Alfonso XIII on April 11, has seen mobs attack and destroy Catholic churches and convents; has seen the cardinal primate of Spain, two bishops and several priests deported; has heard demands from Communists and some other left groups that the Jesuits be expelled, religious houses closed and church property confiscated.

Spain, under the republic, has known decrees establishing religious liberty, abolishing compulsory religious instruction in schools (it can still be given when parents request), ending compulsory attendance at religious services in the army and forbidding public officials from participating ex-officio in religious services.

See Virtual Separation

Some Catholics say these decrees and the expulsion of Cardinal Segura violate the concordat between the Vatican and Spain and for practical purposes amount to a separation of church and state already—although lacking, technically, the actual decree or enactment specifically ordering separation.

If the assembly orders separation the Spanish government will save more than 66,000,000 pesetas, or about $6,600,000, the approximate annual budget heretofore paid by the government toward the support of the church as the official state religion. The last government budg- for the church was 66,273,495 pesetas, of which 54,500,000 was for salaries and maintenane fees to church officials and priests.

CARDINAL SEGURA

The church burnings in May, the religious decrees and the deportation of Cardinal Segura brought diplomatic notes from Vatican City. As far as the public knows the situation between the church and the republic is still unsettled. The government considered that Cardinal Segura had indulged in political expressions unfavorable to the republic, but this has been disputed by church authorities.

Differences in Past

There have been various times in the past when relations have been strained between the Spanish government and the Holy See—usually a somewhat similar charge being involved; that of alleged political activity by some church dignitaries or Catholic bodies.

There are always two sides to such questions, but the fact remains that there has developed in Spain a considerable opinion that the church has had too much influence in politics.

GOOD . . they've got to be good!

UNCLE SAM'S 373,230 POST OFFICE EMPLOYEES handle 76,580,000 pieces of mail every day!

"NEITHER SNOW NOR RAIN NOR HEAT NOR GLOOM OF NIGHT STAYS THESE COURIERS FROM THE SWIFT COMPLETION OF THEIR APPOINTED ROUNDS."

A tribute that is deserved!

Registered "first class"!

"No comebacks"—when you smoke Chesterfields.

The tobaccos are right! Chesterfield uses only mild, ripe, sweet-tasting tobaccos—the best and purest money can buy.

The blend is right! It's an art to put tobaccos together the Chesterfield way—in the exact proportions which bring out the finer qualities of each tobacco type. A science too! For each type of tobacco used must pass rigid laboratory tests for mildness, for aroma, for taste. No raw inferior tobaccos ever find their way into Chesterfield cigarettes!

The manufacture is right. Every Chesterfield is well-filled, well-formed and burns evenly.

The paper is right—in texture, weight and purity. Money can't buy better.

The taste is right. It is not by accident that Chesterfield holds its smokers. They're milder—and yet They Satisfy.

Navy Takes Step Toward Increasing U. S. Sea-Power

Seven New Destroyers Ordered Constructed; Nation Under Limit Prescribed by Terms of London Treaty; Construction of More Probable Later.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 15—As a ... ing up to London ... the navy is about ... of replacing some ... built in the days ... U boat activities. ... which the depart... advertise for con... tomorrow will be a ... rection. Secretary ... he may ask the ... provide money for ... but important type ... the United States ... the 150,000 ton-nage specified by the London treaty for Dec. 31, 1936. Scrapping on account of age, however, will pull the total well below by that date and necessitate replacements.

Owns 21s Destroyers

At present the navy has 219 destroyers, most of which are under 1,200 tons as compared with 1,500 tons for the 11 which are to be built.

No vessel of this class has been laid down since the war.

In the submarine class such extensive replacements may not be necessary to keep up to the 52,700 tonnage specified for the end of 1936. Six large fleet submarines of the V type have been commissioned and three more are building.

The United States is well on its way to the treaty maximum in the eight-inch gun 10,000-ton cruiser class while considerable leeway for construction of six-inch gun ships remains.

Completion of seven eight-inch gun cruisers under contruction will make a total of 15. Three more can be started to reach the 18 allowed under the treaty. These already have been authorized but the money has not been appropriated.

Has 18 Six-Inch Cruisers

The United States now has ten 7,500 ton six-inch gun cruisers and is entitled to about ten more of the same size.

In aircraft carrier tonnage this country is below the maximum of 139,000 tons. The three carriers afloat and the one being built, the Ranger, together total only 91,300 tons. Three more could be constructed.

In the remaining category—battleships—the United States does not have to worry about new construction as it already has the 15 allowed under the London treaty.

GETS STATE POSITION

RALPH E. GRUBAUGH

R. E. GRUBAUGH MADE OHIO BANK EXAMINER

Marion Man Withdraws from Race for City Auditor Nomination.

Ralph E. Grubaugh of 131 Carhart street yesterday received word of his appointment as a state bank examiner under civil service. The appointment was made by I. J. Fulton, state superintendent of banks, and was one of two made by the superintendent yesterday.

Grubaugh will begin work with the department Thursday. He will continue to reside in Marion although his work probably will take him to various parts of the state.

For 10 years, Grubaugh has been connected with Marion banks, more recently with the Marion Savings bank as assistant cashier. He took the civil service examination for bank examiner last April, and was one of four on the eligibility list certified to the superintendent for appointment.

Grubaugh today said his appointment would automatically force him to withdraw from the race for city auditor this year. He was one of two Democrats seeking nomination as city auditor in the city primary next August. Although he has withdrawn, his name will appear on the ballots in August, as the primary ballots have been printed.

Operated by a time clock, a machine has been invented that scatters food for poultry at set intervals, an electric light attachment being included for night feeding.

FIRST WHEAT THRESHED HERE

E. L. Brewer of North of City Brings New Grain to Market.

Both from the standpoint of quality and quantity, the Marion county wheat crop is meeting the expectations of the farmers, according to J. J. Curl of the J. J Curl Co., Inc., at whose elevator the first wheat was brought by Elery L. Brewer of two and one-half miles north of this city on the Upper Sandusky pike.

While the quality and quantity are all that is to be desired the price, growers say, is lower than they had anticipated, 43 cents being offered Monday and 41 cents yesterday. The price being paid is practically the same in all parts of the state. Wheat at Wilmington in the southern part of the state was selling Monday at 43 cents while at Lima elevator men were paying 41 cents.

The yield while varying in different localities is in general meeting the predictions of several weeks ago, farmers reported yesterday that they were getting from 36 to 42 bushels to the acre.

While it is expected that some farmers will store their wheat or use a large part of it for feed, this farmer will be the exception, grain buyers believe, most of the farmers being in much the same financial condition as many of those in the city, and will grasp the opportunity to convert their wheat into cash.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, July 16

A DAY of important affairs, with moves in the direction of "big business" and fulfilled ambitions may be looked for, according to the predominant astral interventions. It is a favorable time for approaching large corporations or secret bodies for financial support or other favorable cooperation, but impetuosity or rashness should be avoided. Tact or diplomacy should be preferred.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of important affairs and affiliations with large enterprises, corporations, rings or secret bodies. A child born on this day should be lively, clever, ambitious and resourceful.

TOUR ARRANGED

Ohio Farmers To Go on Trip in Northwestern Section of State.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 15—The Ohio Farm Bureau News, monthly magazine published by the Ohio Farm bureau, on Aug. 4, 5 and 6 will sponsor a tour planned to give farmers an opportunity to study the farming typical of the northwestern counties of the state.

The tourists will travel by chartered motor bus, and will visit farms and other agricultural projects in that section. In some parts of northwestern Ohio, grain is the principal crop, while other sections devote their energy to the raising of livestock, the cultivation of vegetables and fruit. Still others specialize in poultry and dairying.

Members of the tour will visit outstanding farms of the various types, asking questions and studying the methods used. In addition, they will visit principal farm bureau service branches in many of the counties.

Girl Scout Troop To Have Picnic on Hike

The members of Cardinal Troop No. 3, Girl Scouts, will go on a hike and picnic Saturday. The hike will take them out the Richland pike. Plans are for the girls living west of the Y. M. C. A. to meet at the Y at 7:30 a. m. Girls living east of State street will join in the group as it passes along Mt. Vernon avenue. Signalling and artificial resuscitation will be practiced and tests will be passed for merit badges. A picnic dinner will be at noon.

Mrs. Walter A. Dorsey, councilor, informed the troop in a meeting Saturday afternoon that the girls will have charge of the baby for whom they furnished $3 to the Red Cross for a month's milk. A meeting will be held in two weeks.

Motives for Long Distance Flights Range All Way from Persecution to Prohibition

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 15—The men and women who make long flights—across the country, across the sea, and around the world—do so for a multitude of reasons, which range all the way from persecution to prohibition and include such well known motives as fame and fortune and just plain fun.

Admiral Richard E. Byrd's flights are all undertaken in the name of science. The gathering of scientific data is the real purpose, the flight itself always being secondary.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flies for the advancement of aviation, fame and fortune being by-products which have come to him unasked, and at least as far as fame goes, often unwanted.

Reg L. Robbins, on the other hand, frankly acknowledged that the reason he tried to fly from the west coast to Tokyo, and the reason he will try again, is money. He wants the $25,000 prize offered by a Japanese newspaper.

Harold S. Jones, Robbins' companion, however, said that he took part in the perilous venture simply for the sport of the thing.

Otto Hillig and Holger Hoirlis flew to Denmark in much the same spirit, denying that they were trying to prove anything.

Alexander Magyar and George Endres, set for Newfoundland a flight to Hungary, undertook the venture as a means of calling world attention to the persecution they say their native land has been subjected to as a result of the treaty of Trianon.

News dispatches gave no motive for the attempt of Joseph Lebrix and Marcel Doret to fly from Paris to Tokyo other than that they wished to establish a new straight line non-stop record, but it can at least be speculated that a feeling of rivalry played some part in this flight, for the present record is held by Dieudonne Coste, with whom Lebrix once flew to America by way of the South Atlantic and from whom he parted with considerable hard feeling.

Carries Women's Standard

Laura Ingalls, preparing for an attempt at a solo flight across the Atlantic in the ill-fated footsteps of Ruth Nichols, wants to give additional lustre to the reputation both for women and of aviation.

So it goes; each flier has a reason of his, or her own, and new reasons come along as fast as new fliers. The most recent and in ways the strangest of all is the reason of James G. Hall, who is to attack the transcontinental record of Frank Hawks in the interests of prohibition repeal. His plane is called "The Crusader" for an organization of that name formed to combat the Eighteenth amendment, and under the name is printed "help end prohibition."

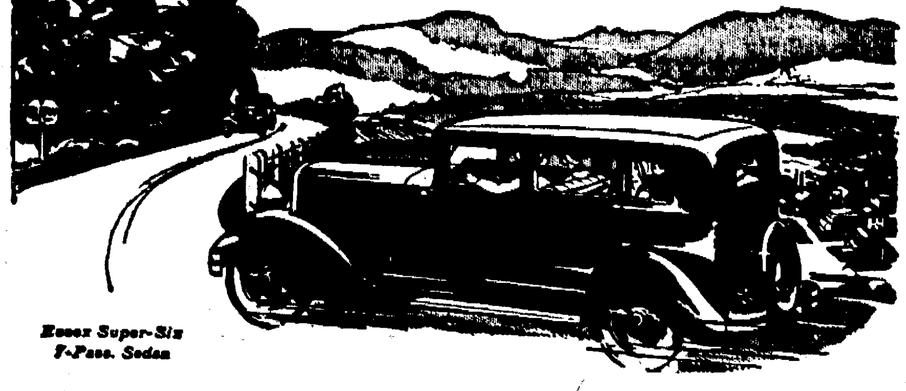
ESSEX Owners are Surprised at the Greater Value of the New Super-Six

Selective FREE WHEELING is but one of its many Improvements



Essex Super-Six 7-Pass. Sedan

The New Essex Super-Six, which now includes Selective Free Wheeling, excites the enthusiasm of all. But its strongest appeal is to those who have owned Essex for years. They are the ones best qualified to judge it. And their spontaneous approval is convincing proof of its genuine fineness.

You'll find Essex owners are folks that like to tour. They think nothing of thousand-mile trips that call for two-day schedules, because they know that Essex is always ready to go when they are. Hence, they are the most severe critics of a car's performance, its year in and year out endurance, and low operating cost.

They expect and get a lot in Essex. And thus it is important that those who are most familiar with Essex are the most enthusiastic over the New Super-Six with Selective Free Wheeling. They say: "We didn't think it possible to make Essex finer or better—but you've certainly done it!"

Doesn't this loyalty to Essex stand as your most convincing proof of Essex quality and ability? If you want final proof, drive the new Essex Super-Six and experience its brilliant, nimble and smooth performance, made even more luxurious because of Selective Free Wheeling.

DEMOCRATS WILL PICK CANDIDATE FROM THESE

WITH the rumblings of political drums in the distance as candidates lay foundations for August primary campaigns, Marionites are turning with interest to the race for mayor—a contest that promises to be the most interesting of all when ballots are cast.

To add to the usual interest in the selection of a chief executive for the city is the unusual fact that seven men are seeking the nomination.

Two of the three Democrats seeking nomination as their party's candidate for mayor have before held the city's highest executive office. They are Mayor L. Don Jones, incumbent, and A. J. Sautter, who has had four years of experience as mayor of Marion. William D. Drake, the third candidate for nomination at the primaries, has never held public office before.

MAYOR L. DON JONES, 40, for the last two years has directed the municipal affairs of Marion. He lives at 131 south Grand avenue and is the father of two children. He is a past commander of the local American Legion post, a past exalted ruler of the Elks lodge, vice president of Kiwanis, and is a member of Marion Lodge No. 70, F. and A. M. and a Boy Scout troop committeeman.

A. J. Sautter, 59, has had political experience both as mayor and as councilman. He filled a vacancy on council by appointment in 1910 and was elected councilman from the fourth ward in 1911, serving two terms. He was elected mayor in 1916 and reelected two years later. He is married, the father of three children and lives at 137 Sargent street. He is a member of the Eagle lodge and the Marion county Democratic club.

William D. Drake is a well known Marionite who for 43 years was a telegraph operator with the Erie railroad. He is 60 years old, lives at 295 north State street and is the father of four children. He has had no previous political experience.

POSTPONE GAMES

Playground Contests To Be Held Within Few Days.

Postponement of the third interplayground contest which was to be held this morning at the Central Junior High school diamonds was made due to weather conditions. This event will be played off within the next few days. The contest has aroused much interest because three of the teams are tied for first place and the next series of games will probably oust one or two teams from their lofty position.

Yesterday afternoon at the Central diamonds, four teams of younger boys taking part in the playground activities clashed in two recreational baseball games. Two teams from the Shovel field and two from Willow street were present, divided into first and second teams. The outcome of the game between the "varsities" was 12 to 3 in favor of the Shovel. Batteries for this game were Uncapher and Forsyth for the visitors, and Rice and Evans for Willow street. The second game between the two second teams, ended 8 to 2 with the Shovel on top.

Daily Proverb—"Adversity borrows its sharpest stings from our impatience."

During the fiscal year ended June 30, federal dry agents seized 7,000,000 gallons of booze. Even at that the country didn't take on exactly the characteristics of a Sahara!

Governor Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, caught a 157-pound swordfish this week. Can Gif's qualifications and fitness for the presidency be longer questioned?

Colonel Douglas Sanday, looking to a decrease of wheat acreage, suggests that the farm board offer a bonus of $1.50 an acre for each acre of land not sown to wheat this year which was so sown last year. Isn't the agricultural relief business being carried somewhat to the extreme?

Professor Edwin B. Frost, of Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago, this week asserted that there is a creative mind behind the development of the universe and that man is "distinctly a result of purpose, rather than accident." It is good to know that we were intended and didn't just happen, or "just growed" like Topsy.

Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie, of New York City, told his congregation recently that the world is suffering from a "curse of catch words." We felt that something was wrong with it, but right along we have been suspecting the movies, the crooners and jazz.

According to a survey completed this week, the 38,714 retail stores of Manhattan, despite the depression, made sales during 1930 amounting to $2,515,421,096. Manhattan has been losing population steadily, but it is evident that the people of New York City still buy there despite the fact that they prefer to live in other sections of the city.

A death from typhus, reported from Charlotte, North Carolina, doesn't speak overly well for health conditions in that city. Typhus is common to Russia and parts of China where sanitation is unknown, but it's decidedly rare to have a case of it reported by an American city.

The Exchange Nationalist Congress element in India will present to England at the next round table conference a bill for $6,327,000,000 for aid rendered the empire since the days of Queen Elizabeth. After a little consideration, Mahatma Gandhi and his followers may be willing to discount their claim something like ninety per cent for cash.

The first plane for the future line over the Atlantic will be ready for testing within three weeks. It is constructed to carry forty passengers and is so built that it can sail upon the waves. The promoters of the proposed transatlantic service certainly have the courage of their convictions.

New wheat is selling out in Kansas for twenty-five cents a bushel. If our memory serves us correctly, Kansas is the state in which the wheat growers expected to make a good thing by raising bumper crops while growers in other states were heeding the government's suggestion of restricted acreage.

The Postman's Whistle.

The postoffice department, always somewhat sensitive on the subject of its annual deficit, has something constructive to offer again. The last time it was an increase in the price of stamps for one ounce and less of first class mail—and in no time at all every one who had a voice or a pen had landed on the department heavily. Nothing more has been heard on that idea.

This time it is an increase in business that the department suggests. Certainly no one can object to that.

A plan of education has been mapped out which, it is hoped, will cause more people to use fourth-class mail privileges—in other words. An increase in that branch of the business would reduce, if not actually wipe out, the parcel post handling deficit, an end eminently attractive to harrassed postal officials.

Rural carriers will become salesmen for the parcel post service. Postmasters will use their influence to convince people in their territory that they are missing something not "sending it through the mail." Classes in civics in high schools and colleges are to be instructed in the proper ways to wrap, pack and address packages for fourth-class mailing, because the less the trouble of handling the greater the profit from handling.

It is noted that among the points in the program is one advising postmasters to use the radio to increase parcel post business. It is assumed this means the free use, since the department apparently does not intend to pay for its other salesmanship pressure outlets. All together, the idea of making the postman's whistle mean more to the public is an idea that deserves support.

Tantamount to a Crime.

This newspaper has long favored the community fund plan for the administering of relief to the needy, and we still are of the opinion that a community fund, fairly and intelligently handled, is the best way for the dispensation of charity, but only with this provision: that it functions at all times as a distinctly local organization, wholly separate and apart from any without paying tribute to any district, state or national organization.

If there is one field which, more than any other, should be free from commercialization it is that of community philanthropy. It would be difficult to think of any community philanthropy today of which advantage is not in some way being taken, and the community fund is not an exception to the rule. Invariably it suffers from fraudulent claims of need, but it should in no case suffer exactions in the form of tribute to some national organization. If there is one place in which local government should be supreme it is in the community fund.

Appreciating the growing popularity of the community fund idea, a national organization has been effected. Its purpose is to secure the allegiance of fund organizations in cities already administering relief in that way and to form organizations in cities in which community fund organizations are not already functioning.

Of course, as indicated, the plan is to exact tribute from each local organization which, the country having been thoroughly organized, should bring a sizable sum into the coffers of the national body. By way of illustration, the local community fund has twice been billed for $125, but as yet has not paid over a cent, and we very sincerely hope it never will.

It is the plan of the national body to set apart a period for a countrywide campaign each year, with the idea of employing the press, the radio and any and all other mediums of publicity which may possibly be worked under the plea of "sweet charity" to boost the game. The result will be, if the national organization is able to execute the plan, that for a period of several weeks the country will ring with stories of hard times, of fearful want, of distress and misery and suffering. Similar pictures will be painted of what may happen if the nationwide drive is not a success, and pessimism will be the order of the day.

It will be a bit hard to figure out how such a campaign will get into accord with the nationwide effort to bring economic conditions back to normal. We can not imagine a greater deterrent than such a campaign would prove.

The burden of philanthropy the country already bears is greater than it should be without additions in the way of further commercialization. And economic conditions are bad enough as they are without such a campaign as proposed.

It is the hope of this newspaper that the local community fund will persevere in its refusal to pay tribute to the present, or any other, national organization and that community fund organizations in all other cities will repulse attempts at exactions. It would be tantamount to a crime against the charitably inclined to take their contributions for local relief and apply them to the payment of salaries and the other items of the overhead of a national organization.

I. S. Guthery, state director of agriculture, is expected to head the trio of judges of the gardens made this summer by the unemployed. Sherman may not know it, but anybody who serves as a judge in any garden contest is going to limit the number of his admirers by the number of entrants who fail to land a prize. We are speaking from the knowledge of experience.

Strange Sights.

Two African boys brought to this country by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, explorers, will have a story to tell when they are sent back to their tribes.

Already they have admitted to interviewers that certain strange sights puzzle them. They do not understand, for instance, why Americans climb up hundreds of feet to build nests in the air like birds when it's so much better on the ground. Skyscrapers? They're silly.

Traffic amuses them. After watching motorists and pedestrians chasing each other on Fifth avenue, New York, it seemed to them that "all these people must be crazy. They want to go all directions, therefore, they do not know where they want to go." There might be something to that.

Honesty, in their opinion, is practically an unknown quality in the United States because so many people have money. Why, even members of their own race can afford to drive automobiles, and every white man has one. Perhaps after the two visitors have worn their new American shoes a few days they will understand the automobile habit a little better.

How the folks back home will enjoy hearing about these strange things! Perhaps all the civic clubs of the district will band together in a monster meeting to give the returned travelers a chance to tell about the time they were in America.

After testing 500 men, the scientists of Columbia university have decided that an even temper is the greatest single factor in happiness. Isn't science wonderful?

Miss Daisy Oden, of Chicago, retired Tuesday as supervisor of women's service for the Burlington after fifty years of service with that railroad. Can it be that maiden ladies ever attain an age such an indicated herein?

The death of Congressman Charles G. Edwards, of Savannah, Georgia, makes another shift in the political complexion of the house, it being now Republican by two. It is something of a coincidence that it is hard to recall, off hand, any time when there has been so many deaths of congressmen or any time when the political lines in the house were so closely divided.

State government in the United States cost $2,061,016,833 in the fiscal year of 1929, according to the federal census bureau, and the outlay in twenty-one of the forty-eight states exceeded their income. The gross revenue of the states amounted to $17.06 per capita and the gross debt was $2,300,056,622. Just a few more rays of light on our debt burden.

Editorial Opinion.

PROFITS OF STABILIZATION.

Procter & Gamble, the Ohio soap manufacturers who took the lessor of the 1921 depression to heart and stabilized employment, is about to announce the best year in its history. Its report, to be issued about the middle of this month, will show the largest net profits and profits per share of any year in the company's history.

It is now seven years since Procter & Gamble inaugurated the system of guaranteed employment which has won wide fame as an example of job stabilization. Its workers no longer dread the layoff and the company appears to be doing well. The test of the guaranteed employment plan has proved it, in the words of Colonel William Cooper Procter, chairman of the board, to be "sound and thoroughly justified from both the humanitarian and the hard economic standpoint."

The record of Procter & Gamble would seem to prove the contention that the worker who is sure of his job serves better than one who is worried about what is going to happen after next pay day.

There are of course other equally important reasons for the Procter & Gamble showing. Before it stabilized employment it stabilized production and distribution. It balanced seasonal demand for some of its products by introducing new ones to take up the slack. In a word, it used its head as well as its heart.

The all-around success of its practical humanitarianism should encourage other business enterprises toward intelligent experiments in job stabilization. All industries may not be able to do so well, but all may be heartened by the example of this company which prides itself in "always making its greatest strides in periods of depression." At the start of the present slump it increased advertising appropriations and pushed sales more vigorously.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WHITE HOUSE "LEAKS."

It is a little startling to read that the chief of the secret service has been called in to investigate so-called news "leaks" at the White House, especially as the leaks themselves do not appear to have been of a very serious character. The story, for instance, about the Negro janitor who told White House carpenters to go easy on their hammering, because "the President has declared a moratorium on noise," adds to the gayety of nations without doing anybody any harm. If the White House secretariat, however, wishes to keep tabs on all those in the White House employ, it certainly has the right to do so.

But when it is announced that in the future all news about the President and his household is to come only from "stated official sources," we have our doubts. Good taste must always be an important part of good journalism. The correspondent in Washington who confines himself to official sources for his information might be replaced by a messenger boy. The duty of a free press is to get the truth. If official sources, as sometimes happens, are unwilling to give him the truth, he is in duty bound to endeavor to get it elsewhere. Without this duty, political journalism would be robbed of much of its value. Such well established tenets of journalistic ethics, achieved after many a struggle, can not be overthrown. —New York Herald Tribune.

Surgery in Infancy.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A very common deformity seen at birth is that condition known as harelip. This congenital deformity is usually accompanied by a cleft palate.

There has been a delay in the union of the palate and of the lip, so that a middle cleft or space exists. This defect is of importance, not only from a cosmetic point of view, but because the deformity may interfere seriously with the nutrition of the infant. The feedings are taken with difficulty if at all.

As a rule, the defect may be corrected by surgical measures. The opening can be closed and although there is a persisting scar and some deformity, function of the mouth is brought to normal.

There has been much dispute as to when the operation should be performed. It is generally agreed now that a cleft palate should not be operated upon until the child has reached the age of six months. On the other hand, the operation for harelip is recommended in early infancy.

The third to sixth month, or even earlier, may be the time of choice. This is particularly important if the deformed lip interferes with the proper nutrition of the child.

Even though children with this deformity can not nurse from the breast they may be able to take milk from the bottle. Sometimes it is necessary to pour milk into the child's mouth from a teaspoon. The feeding may also be accomplished by the passage of a soft rubber tube into the gullet.

Since it is important that the nutrition of the infant be maintained you can see why the operation should be done as soon as possible. Your doctor will advise you about this.

The operation is not a difficult one and the results obtained are very gratifying. The operation may be done with the use of a very small amount of chloroform.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Gnadenhutten.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The purchase a few years ago of land at the site of Gnadenhutte by the state, and the plan to restore the old Moravian mission house there as an historical matter, has greatly increased interest in this place and the tragic incidents that took place there. It was in 1772, sixteen years before the first permanent settlement was made in the state at Marietta, that the Moravians founded Gnadenhutten as a village settlement for Christian Indians.

On March 8, 1782, an expedition organized in the western townships of Washington county, Pennsylvania, marched to this mission on the Tuscarawas branch of the Muskingum and massacred ninety of these Christian Indians and destroyed the mission. Only two members escaped, two boys, who hid away.

The first news that came to the people east of the mountains of the massacre was received through the Pennsylvania Packer, printed at Pittsburgh, April 9, a month after it occurred. The act was generally denounced. General Irvine, in command at Pittsburgh, was away at the time, and denied knowledge of the expedition. It was a mob rather than a military organization, some mounted and some on foot, and was made up mostly of young men from eighteen to twenty years old. David Williamson was in command, but he was not chosen to lead until the expedition reached Mingo. He was not a bloodthirsty man, but lacked courage to hold back the men under him.

Indians from portions of Ohio further west had been harrying the outposts of the whites along the Ohio river which was then the western boundary of safe habitations for whites, and it popularly was believed that Gnadenhutten was a resting place for these Indian raiding parties. It was no secret that many threats had been made to march to the place and destroy it. Among the members of the expedition the old idea prevailed that the only good Indian was a dead one, and yet a number of the members would not take part in the massacre. A monument was erected marking the site of the mission at the celebration of its centennial of its establishment in 1872.

The Word of God.

The Lord is thy keeper; the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand.—Psalm 121:5.

Television's Marconi.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

We have heard comparatively little of John Lozie Baird in this country. But then there seems no reason to doubt that he it was who first enabled man to "see through a brick wall." For half a century preceding Baird's successful demonstration of television, scientists in many countries had labored to reach this visionary goal. At the time of Graham Bell's invention of the telephone, more than fifty years ago, some imaginative person, thrilled by the thought of hearing at a great distance, prophetically remarked, "We shall be seeing at a distance yet." This prophecy has been realized, although much still remains to be done to make television generally available to the masses as are now available the telegraph, the telephone and the radio.

John Lozie Baird, the son of a Scottish Presbyterian minister, was born at Helensburg. During the schoolboy stage, he gave evidence of a markedly inventive turn of mind. Like many boys of the day, he set up a private telephone exchange, connecting him with four other boys. For a time he tinkered with an antiquated motor-car, which gratified his mechanical instincts. Somewhat later he pursued his scientific studies at the Royal Technical college and at Glasgow university.

After serving for a time at a motor works, with excessively long hours, he took up a post under the Scottish electricity commission as assistant superintendent of the Clyde Valley Electrical Power company. All through the period of the World war he worked on the machines which supplied power and light to the munitions factories and shipyards of the Clyde. Repeated attacks of ill-health interrupted every business he went into; and finally the doctors told him that he must abandon forever the thought of a business career.

Baird now turned to individual scientific research, which was to lead him to one of the great scientific achievements of the age. So successful was his research into the problem of television that it was not long before he had something highly interesting to show for his pains. Before an invited audience, he gave an exhibition in a room over a shop in Queen's arcade, Hastings. At this time, he transmitted wave shadows from a transmitter to a receiving apparatus. In this, he had been anticipated by Jenkins, the American inventor, working along somewhat different lines. But, although it was a tiny step toward the goal, it was the beginning of great things. In Bridges & Tiltman's "Master Minds of Modern Service," the authors express the belief that that first successful experiment will be associated in history with the first electric light and the flight of the Wright brothers. The mechanism set up by Baird was of the simplest character, and made out of homely, familiar materials. Baird's apparatus was made out of an old tea chest and an empty biscuit box. The projection lens was a bull's-eye lens costing about twenty cents, the driving mechanism was a toy electric motor which cost less than a dollar and a half.

Baird had a long way to go yet, from the transmission of a flickering image of a Maltese cross, to the spanning of the Atlantic by television, which he accomplished in February, 1927. In commenting upon this demonstration, the New York Times said: "His success deserves a rank with Marconi's sending of the letter S across the Atlantic. Baird's fame among inventors is now worldwide. And it is confidently predicted that in the near future he will give to the world successful television in the home."—Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Marion—Seen Through Local Eyes.

The following is the answer of one citizen to the question, "What Is Wrong with Marion?"—the first in the questionnaire circulated by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer to get a comprehensive insight into the community feeling regarding our home city, in the hope of arriving at a remedy for handicaps, if any, from which Marion may suffer. From day to day, answers of various citizens to the same question will be given publicity on this page.

"What is wrong with Marion?"

So far as I can see there is nothing so very wrong with Marion.

It is no doubt down in the dumps very much the same as most towns the size of Marion, but I feel that this condition is to a great extent mental, that is, that we believe it is a condition far worse than it really is.

Byron's "Glorious Eden."

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

In Portugal, a short distance from Lisb the traveler finds Cintra, one of those ra spots on the earth's surface which reminds o of the past.

This colorful little village lies in that f
mous Portugal region known as the Mou tains of the Moon. For those who love to tu back history's pages and dream of t pageantry and the pomp of the past, it is Mecca to which no pilgrimage can be too lo or too often repeated.

For Cintra was a cultural center in the da when the Portuguese ruled a good part of t world, when King Manuel, the Fortunate, w one of the most powerful of all the earth monarchs. And today the visitor gazes up the palace of this king and sees it in all flamboyant richness, much as it was in i heyday.

Many poets have paid tribute to the e traordinary beauty of Cintra and its surroun
ing country. Much of Lord Byron's "Chil Harold" was written there, and he called th place a "glorious Eden."

Southey also laid a verbal garland at th
gates of Cintra when he called the ham
"the most blessed spot on the habitable globe

But entering the doorway that leads Manuel's famous Pena castle, let us see fo ourselves the rooms where kings and quee spent their summers.

Beautiful Arab tiles line many of the splendid chambers. One of the most famou of the rooms is the Hall of the Magpies. Th ceiling of this is painted with the grotesqu figures of blackbirds.

Another splendid room is the "Hall Swans," which was named by King Manuel honor his daughter, who kept a flock of thes birds in the palace patio pool as pets. Eac of the swans, painted on the ceiling of th room, wears the cloth of gold collar whic the princess is said to have embroidered he self.

A third striking room is the "Hall of th Stags," which King Manuel himself is said have designed. This room contains th escutcheons of the Portuguese royal famil
and those of other lords of the country.

The present republican form of governmen of Portugal has taken pains to preserve thes trappings of royalty during the two decade since Manuel II, the present deposed king and the queen mother, departed from the ma nificent doors of the castle, which had bee
the family's summer home for centuries

PAUL RADER

Life of Adventure

...reads like an adven... When a child he was ... After a boyhood ... west he became suc... heavyweight boxer, ... cowpuncher before ... evangelistic work.

When Mr. Rader was nine years ... moved to Wyoming ... a small town with a general ... a school-house and a black... Here he found his ... and became a boy preacher. ... service was held in a ... school house. "When I got ... he explains, "there was no... on hand except a mouse under ... desk, and he was ... scared as I was. Later ... came in. One of them ... boardinghouse where I ... was converted so gen...uinely that when the time came for the night meeting she had corralled a houseful of people. The services continued every night for two weeks."

Encouraged by friends, Mr. Rader's father sent him to a denominational school in the east. Modernism was just beginning to make headway in the church schools. It was a new doctrine to the young preacher and there was a gap of several years before he returned to his present position as "an evangelist who believes the Bible to be the word of God, literally, from cover to cover."

Popular Boxer

During this time he developed his pugilistic ability, made good money and became popular. Rader tells that in the days when Jack Johnson, the colored heavyweight fighter, was champion of the world, and following Johnson's defeat of Jim Jeffries, there was an effort on the part of Bob Fitzsimmons and others to develop him as the logical "white hope."

Paul Rader Preaches Sermon to Two Women in Country School.

But he turned from the "squared circle" to the pulpit and preached from street corners and in lowly missions, climbing the grade until he became pastor of the Dwight L. Moody church in Chicago. His church was too small and a tabernacle seating 5,000 persons was built. Later he made a missionary tour around the world. When the present Gospel Tabernacle was built he expected to remain there eight weeks. He recently celebrated his tenth year as pastor.

Mr. Rader has his own radio station, WJBT, on the air each Sunday from 9 a. m. until midnight. Evangelistic meetings are held at the tabernacle each night of the year.

The program Sunday will start at 8 p. m. The union choir has been assembled by Mrs. Paul Knauss and Mrs. C. E. Turley and is under the direction of Knox Dunlop.

Sage Continues To Show Improvement

Improvement in the condition of Walter Sage is noticed from day to day, City hospital attaches reported this morning. Although he continues to lie in a drowsy and sleepy condition most of the time, his faculties are clear when he is wakened and he is able to recognize his family and talk with them. Sage who is assistant county surveyor was strucuk by a truck June 27 while at work on the Upper Sandusky pike.

2nd Round in Women's Golf Match at Country Club Closes

THE second round of play in the women's handicap golf tournament at the Marion Country club closed this afternoon. The third round goes into play Thursday afternoon and closes Monday. The first three rounds are nine holes each. Semi-final and final rounds are each 18 holes. Mrs. W. A. Dennis is chairman of women's golf at the club this year.

Golfing has taken on added interest this year with the scheduling of matches at home and with Bucyrus, Findlay and Delaware, and with the handicap tournament. Tuesday morning the Marion women will go to the Odevene club at Delaware for match play.

Hostess to W. C. T. U.

Mrs. H. F. Good was hostess to the members of the Florence Richards chapter of the W. C. T. U. at her home on Oliney avenue Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Gladys Hall, president, and prayers were offered by Mrs. C. E. Wendell and Mrs. William Damude. Plans for the annual picnic to be held at Garfield park on July 24 at which children from the Marion county children's home and from the county detention home, will be the guests, were made at the meeting.

A nominating committee consisting of Miss Minnie Hoover, Mrs. C. E. Wendell and Mrs. Frank Ringler, was appointed to prepare for the annual election of officers at the next meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. C. E. Wendell on Davids street the second Tuesday in August.

Rayl Class Hears Two Speakers

Harling Spring, Marion musician who has accepted the position of director of music in Westport High school, Kansas City, Mo., this fall and Rev. Karl W. Patow, pastor of the Prospect Street M. E. church who toured the Holy land last year, spoke before the Rayl class of Trinity Baptist church last night at a monthly meeting.

Mr. Spring gave a talk on the similarity of modern classical music with that of the sixteenth century. He demonstrated the similarity by playing two violin numbers, "Largo," Vivaldi and "Meditation," Massenet, and sang "Hedge Roses," Schubert, accompanied at the piano by his sister, Mrs. Glenn H. Wymer.

Rev. Patow illustrated his talk with slides which he had made in the Holy Land.

J. W. Egan read the scripture lesson and Rev. O. T. Swigart offered prayer. The program was in charge of Mrs. Myrtle Smith's group with Mrs. Jennie Shutes as chairman.

Mrs. J. S. "Mother" Rayl, for whom the class was named, was present last evening. Her health has not permitted her to attend meetings regularly. Rev. E. C. Pottorf of Fite Memorial Baptist church was present. Refreshments were served to 75 by Mrs. D. R. Hemmerly's group with Mrs. D. A. Neff as chairman. A meeting will be held Aug. 11.

Age-Old Astringent Clears Milady's Skin of Impurit

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

AGAIN I wish to stress the importance of thoroughly cleansing the skin before using astringents. This is a vital precaution because any preparation that causes the pores to shrink may "lock-in" impurities and result in blackheads and enlarged pores.

Thus by cleansing the skin is meant that every impurity should be removed from the pores else this or any other astringent will prove valueless.

The astringent formula I am offering today is an old one and is simple to compound. It is made by dissolving two heaping teaspoonfuls of epsom salts crystals in one pint of water that has been boiled for fifteen minutes. Be sure the crystals have dissolved before placing the liquid in a bottle.

Two or three drops of perfume may be added if one wishes to scent the astringent, but since alcohol tends to dry the skin without actually closing the pores, it is best to use as little perfume as possible. Two or three drops will give the liquid a delicate fragrance.

Keep the liquid in a bottle and covered when not in use. To use, simply saturate a pad of cotton and pat it upward and outward over the face. You'll notice how refreshing and soothing this liquid is and how it actually closes the pores after the first application.

The liquid should dry on the skin naturally, or if it is rinsed it should remain sufficiently to shrink the pores, which is five minutes.

It isn't advisable to use ing or basic creams on an oily skin, but if such prepa are already a necessary pa your make-up routine, they be used sparingly and only the astringent has been use

"Remove the Cause—Nature will do the Rest"

BOWELS INACTIVE 8 YEARS,
—HAD GIVEN UP ALL HOPE;
NOW FEELS FINE-GAINED 35 lbs.

MR. CHARLES D. POTTS, 40 VALE AVE. MANSFIELD, O., writes as follows:

"In 1923 I was taken severely ill. My bowels were absolutely inactive, and an extreme enema was necessary to produce each evacuation. No one was able to properly diagnose my trouble. I gained but temporary relief at intervals for two years, but for the past five years I have been unable to secure any relief whatsoever, although I tried every purgative and cathartic I knew or heard about.

"I have gone as long as 28 days without evacuation and then it was forced mechanically. My case seemed absolutely hopeless and I was given up to die. Then I heard about ZO-RO-LO and began taking it less than two months ago. At that time I was naturally in a run down condition and it was practically impossible for me to do any work. I dared not eat a sufficient quantity of food because of the lack of elimination.

"Since taking this wonderful medicine I have gained 35 pounds, my power of elimination has been restored, and I am feeling fine. I wish to praise this great medicine in the highest terms."

- Here is one of the hundreds of voluntary letters constantly coming to the ZO-RO-LO offices. The results in this case were nearly miraculous. This
- great discovery is the MODERN medicine . . . it attacks the CAUSE rather than the symptoms, thereby aiming at PERMANENT relief. It assists nature to re-establish normal metabolism process and to free the system of accumulated toxins. Do not confuse it with ordinary remedies. Try it TODAY.

CHAPTER 38
His Final Cue

"PIERRE!" cried Ann, and there was gladness and love in her voice as she knelt beside him. His eyes were open now. "Pierre, don't you know me—Ann? And here is Father Tony—your Father Tony, Pierre."

They saw the light of recognition come to the deep sunken eyes. He looked wearily from face to face, then back to Ann and they could see him questioning, thinking, thinking. And then they saw the great soul of Harriet Noel's son regaining its mastery over the desecrated body and the bewildered and tormented brain. His voice came thick and harsh through his cracked and swollen lips. "Where am I?"

It was Jimmie Harrigan who answered joyfully: "Sure and ye are back in Red Butte, me lad, safe and sound after comin' through what no other man has ever yet come through and lived to tell about it."

"Red Butte?" said Pierre. He looked at the sheriff, "Who are you?"

"I'm Sheriff Billings, son, but dont worry, my boy, everything's all right."

He stooped to put a glass of water to the parched lips. Instantly the thirst-tortured body asserted itself. The talonlike hands clutched the glass with desperate eagerness. An insane animal light flashed in the deep-set eyes; strange sucking, animal sounds came from the parched throat.

"Steady, boy!" said the sheriff, "steady. Just a little at a time does it. You can have some more in a few minutes, and pretty soon all you want."

His strong hand removed the glass from that despairing grip, and put it out of sight.

Once more the boy looked from face to face, and as he rested his gaze on Ann, they saw the Pierre Donovan, who lived within this flesh that was so near to death, asserting himself. They saw but did not understand that Harriet Noel's actor son was about to play still another part. They did not know that as he lay there looking into Ann's face, Pierre Donovan, the actor, was visualizing the character which for love of her he must create.

Acting this new role, he said in a stronger, clearer voice: "There is something I must tell you, Ann."

"Not now, dear. Wait until you are stronger."

"No, I must tell you now. I can't wait."

For a moment he was silent and they could see that he was arranging his thoughts and calling on the scant physical strength that was left to him.

"You remember that night we set up your dressmaking form, Ann?"

"I could never forget that, day," cried Ann impulsively. "But—"

He interrupted her.

"I said I would get the money I needed if I had to steal it."

"I know, Pierre dear, but you must not—"

He stopped her with an imperative gesture—the gesture of the soda fountain boy actor.

Ann choked back a sob and Old Tony turned his face away.

"Well, after I left you," Pierre continued, still acting his part in his best soda fountain manner, "I was passing the bank. I saw the cashier passing the bank. I saw the cashier go in. He left the door ajar. I followed him. He had a lot of money. I hit him with Martin's cane and took the money. You saw me, Father Tony, when I was running away. I didn't mean to kill the cashier. The sight of all that money made me crazy, I guess."

"Pierre, Pierre!" cried Ann. "Stop—oh, stop, dear Pierre! You must not—"

Pierre checked her by struggling to his knees. Speechless with amazement, they helped him to a chair. And then as if he were acting in a play, he continued to pour out his fantastic confession, his voice, gaining strength as he proceeded, as if rallying the last of his physical powers for the climax.

"I decided that night that I must be rich. I had learned the truth that money is everything and that art is nothing. I saw that I had been a fool to wish to be an actor. To live for money; to die for money; to go to hell for money—that is the thing. I thought that with this bank money to start with, I could make millions. I came west under the pretense of finding Bruce. I told Bruce what I had done. He tried to make me go back to Orchard Hill and give myself up. We got lost in the desert; there was not water enough for two; Bruce died. Bruce gave his life to save me, Ann—'greater love hath no man than this—'" His voice faltered, and, acting his part, he bowed his head in grief and shame.

No one stirred. Awe-stricken, as if the presence of something more than human, would neither move nor cry out.

Suddenly, Pierre rose to his feet and in the manner of an actor, playing a melodramatic part on the stage, cried in a clear voice: "I Pierre Donovan, do solemnly declare in the presence of these witnesses that I am guilty of the crime for which they have arrested Ann's father; that Ann's husband, Bruce Carey, died to save my life."

For a moment he held the pose. Then stepping backward as if about to exit from the stage he staggered. The sheriff started forward. But Pierre, drawing himself erect, halted the officer with an imperious, melodramatic gesture. The next instant he moved a step backward and fell.

Ann was the first to reach him. "Pierre!" she called. "Pierre! Don't leave me, Pierre! I love you, Pierre, don't leave me!"

The sheriff knelt over the prostrate form. Slowly he rose to his feet, signifying with a gesture that the actor had indeed made his exit.

The deputies and Jimmie Harrigan stood with bowed heads.

Old Antonio Latour said reverently, "Bravo, bravo, my little Pierre!"

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

IT must have rained almost all night, because I heard the thunder rolling around the sky, but when I woke up and stuck my head out the window to let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth it wasn't raining any more, but all the roofs were wet and the eaves were dripping, and it was cooler than it had been before it rained. I got into my short britches and went down stairs and the mud sure felt good to my bare feet on the way to the barn. The bunch were all there before I got the dummed brutes milked, and the dogs were running around the yard playing with one another and having a good time.

When I went in and strained the milk they were all setting at the table except me, and Feeble and Maggie were both setting in my chair, and no one said anything, and I pretended to not notice, but just before I got to the table I looked out of the window and hollered, "Fire! Fire!" and ran to the window, and everybody but Annabelle Lee, who couldn't get out of her high chair, jumped up to see where the fire was, and when they turned around I was setting in my place and had some pancakes on my plate.

Everyone thought it was a good joke on Feeble and Maggie. They can't munky with me and get away with it. I said, "Well, did I make it rain or didn't I?" and my grandfather said, "It certainly rained dollars for the farmers." Then my mother said it must have meant thousands of dollars to them. I asted them what farmers and they said all farmers wherever the rain fell. I was surprized, but a fella never knows.

When I went out where the bunch was and told them Banty said his father said the same thing. So on the way to the pasture we all went over into a potato field and tried to find some dollars, and we were looking all around when the man that owned it came out and asted what we had lost, and I asted him if it rained dollars on his farm yesterday and he said it certainly did. Then I said we were looking to see if we could find a few, because we were the fellows that made it rain and we ought to have a right to a few of them. So then we told him about the snakes, and he told about how it rains dollars for a farmer, and we felt cheap. But he said if we made it rain we had something coming to us and if we'd come back when apples and grapes were ripe he would give us a dividend. I told him I had never seen one, and he laughed and said they never grow for a farmer unless it rains, and if we made it rain we had one coming to us. We'll certainly get our'n when they get ripe.

It rained again today so hard we couldn't play ball, so we went out to the pasture and took the snakes off the bush and made it stop. The world is certainly wet.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Becomes Absorbed in Her Task

LILLIAN was suddenly thoughtful as Katherine said that she "begged to differ and all the rest of it" from Lillian's opinion that we were safe from interruption for the rest of the night.

"You're probably right at that," she said after a second. "Some one of the household still up, most probably Dicky, is going to blunder in here and create more havoc than any china shop bull ever serving as a proverb. But what's the answer?"

"A very simple one," Katherine retorted. "Madge doesn't need me to help her read this play. She knows every role forward and backward. All you wanted of me was to 'lend an air of verisimilitude' to the thing. But I'm a lot better in watching at the keyhole than I am in lending an air. So if you don't mind, I'll do patrol duty outside until everybody in the house is sound asleep. Then I'll brew some hot black coffee, and breeze into the session, if you'll promise, Madge, not to lose the thread of your thinking when you see me. Otherwise I'll let you starve to death, both of you."

Getting Under Way

"You couldn't disturb me—or anybody—" I told her fervently and truthfully, for my little kinswoman's tactfulness and efficiency are put in the super class by her talent in effacing herself.

"Gramercy for the gateau," she laughed. "How about it, Lil? Will you let me off?"

"Of course," Lillian's tone was crisp. "The one essential here tonight is that we be free from interruption. Take our blessing with you, Katrina, and—beat it."

"I'm already gone." The little nurse opened the door as she spoke, and passed out. As the door closed behind her, Lillian picked up the carbon copy of the first two acts.

"Did Dicky get the man he planned to have make a new copy of the original for Phil?" she asked casually, and I guessed that she was marking time until I should be ready.

"Yes. He's to have the copy back in the morning," I returned. "And, now, I'm through with the stage fright, and ready to go on with the show, if you are."

For answer she zipped back the curtains drawn across the front of the miniature stage.

"Get going!" she ordered. "What's the first stage direction? 'At curtain rising, Cuthbert discovered standing on his head in the corner?'"

"Not quite," I said, laughing at her nonsense and feeling that the tension of my nerves was lessening. "But if you'll stand 'Cuthbert' on his feet at the door, R., holding it open, and apparently talking to some one outside, I'll read the lines."

"All right, 'Cuthbert' come to Mamma," she said giving to the mannequin the name which in desperation of invention I had used when beginning the play, and to which I still clung, although I had substituted a more natural cognomen in my copy. She put him in the place I had designated, and I plunged into the reading of the first act. At first, Lillian placed the tiny doll actors in their positions, but as gradually, I forgot myself and became absorbed in the lines and business, she left their manipulation to me, and simply attended to the curtain and the disposal of the dolls after I had moved them off the stage to the wings.

Katherine had been correct in saying that I knew every comma of the lines I had written, and I left the carbon copy to Lillian while I went through the dialogue and stage directions from memory. Thus it was that I became so absorbed in my work that when Lillian sent down the curtain at the end of the second act, I set into place the doll actors whom I had mentally designated for the third act, and almost subconsciously, struck into the dialogue. It was not until several minutes later when I paused in search of a word which was eluding me, that I realized what had happened, and I stopped short, my eyes wide open with amazement bordering on panic.

"Lillian!" I gasped.

"D'ye want that last sentence?" she asked coolly. "Cuthbert speaking, slowly, putting an iron hand upon his fury but not succeeding in wholly hiding it. 'Then all these years have been—?' He leaves the question up in the air, and it's Ethelberta's cue to interrupt him."

"I've begun the third act!" I said, still wondering if I were awake or dreaming.

"I'll tell Philip Veritzen and all his deceased wife's relatives that you have," she retorted. "Look at Exhibit A if you don't believe it!"

She held up a small notebook which she had kept successfully hidden before, and I saw that its pages were covered with shorthand characters.

"You've done three hundred words of your six thousand," she said, "and you have the thing by the tail. All you have to do now is to keep on swinging."

FASCIST HEADS STRIKE AT POPE

Mussolini and Aids Assail Recent Encyclical on Young Fascism.

ROME, July 15—Premier Mussolini and the Fascist directorate today denounced the pope's recent encyclical on young Fascism as a collection of "lies."

The Vatican and Masonry have combined in "common hostility toward the Fascist state," they charged, and to "defame" Balilla, a Fascist organization of boys.

In a statement, the directorate announced that the membership of the Fascist party, 873,000 adults and 642,000 youths, would mobilize shortly on the Piave battlefields of northern Italy to demonstrate that Fascism is a military unit "that has achieved a revolution and has the imperative duty of defending it against whomsoever."

"The directorate of the party protests against the lies," the statement said, "and denounces the affirmations in the foreign note of Vatican origin against Balilla, the strong pride and future of the Fascist regime. It declares that no one should be allowed to defame the great organization."

The pope's criticism of the Fascist oath came in for strong objection.

"Black shirts have demonstrated that they know how to renounce bread, career and even life," said the statement, "when it is necessary for the country and for Fascist revolution. The Fascist party spurns, therefore, the grave attempts by which it is sought to depreciate its faith, already proved by sacrifices.

"The directorate is vigilant to prevent any of the old remnants of the Masonic and liberal days from resuming any activities, even on the edges of the regime. But, this having been stated, the directorate calls attention to the unheard-of alliance between the Vatican and Masonry, which are bound together in a common hostility towards the Fascist state."

Injustice Charged

Mrs. Chase asserted the "affidavits interpreting the William Beaumont hospital army physicians' report will show the injustice and unfairness we have been up against."

Fall was examined by the army hospital here several weeks ago on request of the government. The report said he was suffering from chronic tuberculosis, chronic pleurisy, arthritis and hardening of the arteries.

At the United States marshal's office opinion was expressed that commitment papers would be sent Warden Ed Swope at the New Mexico penitentiary and he would notify Fall to come to Santa Fe.

DIES AT SYCAMORE

Mrs. Sarah Robey Passes Away at Daughter's Home.

SYCAMORE, July 15 — Mrs. Sarah Robey, 65, widow of George M. Robey, who died six months ago, passed away at the home of Mrs. George Snerringer, a daughter, here last night.

The body was taken to her home on north Main street this afternoon where funeral services will be held Friday at 1:30 p. m. and in the United Brethren church at 2 p. m. Burial will be made in Pleasant View cemetery. Flowers are to be omitted.

She was born July 7, 1866, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Haas. Surviving are four children, Mrs. Emery Walton of near Upper Sandusky, Mrs. George Sherringer of Sycamore and Clyde and Walter Robey of near here; two brothers, Rev. C. M. Mussolini Sees Peace as Only Aid to Economic Ills

Entry of United States into Geneva Arms Limitation Conference Greatest Step Toward Success, Italian Dictator Tells United Press Interviewer.

Robert J. Bender, vice president and general news manager of the United Press, was received in audience by Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy after the recent arrival of Secretary of State Stimson in Rome and following conversations which Stimson had with Mussolini and Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister. During the interview, the Duce gave the United Press a striking statement of his feelings o nthe arms limitation conference to be held at Geneva next February. The interview is particularly timely and interesting in view of the general European economic situation and in light of the fact that Secretary Stimson will continue in Paris and Berlin has "soundings" of sentiment among leading European statesmen on the arms limitation question.

ROME, July 15—"The presence of the United States of America at the disarmament conference in 1932 is the most formidable guarantee of its success," Premier Benito Mussolini said to me in a private interview granted after his important conversations on disarmament with Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson. "I do not think Mr. Hoover's moratorium proposals are the final solution of the world's economic problems, they are the first step.

"Without the United States," Mussolini said earnestly, "the disarmament conference would be a failure—just as so many other conferences have been failures on this side of the Atlantic."

The duce, dressed in white, appeared tired as he sat at his desk in his private office, a room about the size of a city lot; in the Palazzo Venezia. The desk lamp threw into sharp relief his striking face and big white-encircled eyes. Mussolini had just concluded receiving a group of 100 Rotarians. He toyed with a pair of shears throughout the conversations, his small serpent ring attracting attention as he opened and closed the scissors.

U. S. Influence Great

"The United States," he resumed slowly, "is the most powerful country in the world. Its influence is bound to tell."

The premier pursed his lips and nodded his head seriously as he fixed staring eyes on his interviewer.

"The decision to be represented and to take an active part in the proceedings is the greatest concrete step disarmament has had.

"American can put it over by pounding with hammer blows until disarmament is an accomplished fact.

"This has got to be."

The duce paused a moment. He appeared to be seeking to choose his English words carefully as he continued:

"There is no other road if western civilization is to live. As we stand before 1932, we are facing a great uncertainty. On our decision depends the future of the world.

"If we decide for peace, we will have saved humanity. If we decide for war, we will plunge the world into chaotic disaster."

In response to my query as to whether President Hoover's moratorium proposal had yet shown any benefits and how far it constituted a solution to the present economic crisis, Mussolini replied:

"Already the restorative effects of President Hoover's proposal for a moratorium have made themselves evident. Unemployment is decreasing in Germany and there are signs of resumption. The same is true in Italy and even in the United States. England is slow in starting but the way is now open and there is a promise of normalcy."

"We even think we are much worse off than we really are. It takes some time for us really to believe our eyes that things are getting better because we have been thinking negatively all the time and living in a low morale with nothing but depression in our minds. It takes us some time to get over that, but once we get our confidence back we will lift our horizon and see a brighter future.

"I do not think Mr. Hoover's proposals are the final solution, they are the first step. Others must come and almost every one by this time is beginning to realize that disarmement is the overshadowing issue."

Mussolini then pointed to what he regarded as the fruits to be gained through a successful disarmament conference at Geneva.

"The great powers," he said, "can get relief in disarmament. It is the one place where budgets can be sliced without affecting the welfare and happiness of a nation, it being generally understood that all disarm at the same time. If only from an economic viewpoint, disarmament is a pressing necessity and since the average nation spends about one-fourth of its revenues on its military establishment, the value of lightening the burden is evident.

"Not secondary to the immediate economic saving is the guarantee disarmament will mean for a long period of peace. Unrest and stagnation followed the war and morale is low. The world is craving a sustained peace. The reestablishment of the normal flow of commerce and the resumption of industry make peace an essential part of the world program."

PICNIC PLANNED

Legion Post and Auxiliary To Hold Outing at Park.

Plans for a picnic at Lincoln park next Wednesday afternoon for the Legion post members, their families and auxiliary members and their families have been completed, Ralph E. Grubaugh, chairman of the picnic committee, reported at a meeting of Bird McGinnis Post No. 162, American Legion, in the dugout on south High street last night.

A ball game and picnic supper will be features of the affair, which also will include other contests and amusements.

Marion League Members Spend Day in Cincinnati

Members of the intermediate league of the Epworth M. E. church returned yesterday about 10 p. m. after spending the day in Cincinnati as a reward for attendance and service in the league work. More than 40 members were taken in automobiles furnished by parents and friends.

A visit was made to the Cincinnati zoological gardens in the morning, and in the afternoon the party attended the baseball game between Boston and Cincinnati. They also viewed the Ohio river from various points around Cincinnati. The trip was made possible through the efforts of Dr. C. E. Turley, pastor of the church, and a committee which was appointed.

rencies was another matter likely to be considered by the cabinet. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, exercised such authority during the deflation period of 1923.

A certain amount of payroll coverage would be possible and already has been obtained even with banking operation suspended. But to provide $600,000,000 needed on Friday, to tide industry over an abnormal money shortage, caused by huge withdrawals of credits from abroad, the government would be forced either to find final colossal credit assistance or temporarily to resort to expansion of currency.

Party Expression

As Germania, organ of Chancellor Bruening's party expressed it when the cabinet adjourned last night: "After the world bank meeting at Basel the foreign credit way out for Germany seems for the time being to be walled up." Hence the discussion in official and financial circles centered around the question of which of the various forms of currency expansion is least likely to bring back the disastrous days of post-war deflation in which millions of frugal Germans lost their life savings.

The cabinet's important session fell on a day which previously was set for a nation-wide demonstration of the jobless against the recent reduction in the unemployment dole. In the interests of public safety the police have forbidden such a manifestation in Berlin and blanket orders have been issued against it in most cities of the Reich.

Marriage Trade To Be Celebrated by 2 Families

By The Associated Press

POMONA, Calif., July 15 — George B. Spotswood and F. L. Stevens have announced a dinner for their families here Saturday to celebrate their exchange of wives.

Their new romances began over a bridge table.

The original Spotswoods were married in Canada 11 years ago and have two children, Doris, 10, and Billie, 9. The original Stevens were married here 20 years ago and also have two children, Dale, 19, and Thelma, 7.

Dale looked after the other three children as the couples met at one home or the other and found each other more than congenial. Their decision to change wives was mutual.

Spotswood and Mrs. Stevens went to Las Vegas, Nev., obtained divorces on grounds of mental cruelty and were married. When they returned Stevens and Mrs. Spotswood went to Las Vegas and were married last June 30.

"It was the only thing to do," said Mrs. Spotswood-Stevens.

"Thelma will live with us," said Mrs. Stevens-Spotswood, explaining a new division of the children, "and Dale wants to stay on the ranch and help his father."

TO OPEN CANNING KITCHENS THURSDAY

Women's Club Committees To Aid Families of Unemployed with Work.

Two community canning kitchens will be opened by the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs Thursday morning to assist the families of unemployed in preserving their vegetables for the winter.

It was planned to open four kitchens, but because many of the families having gardens have been able to can their vegetables without outside aid, two kitchens will take care of the need at present, Mrs. Louis Uhl, home economics chairman said this morning.

Fite Memorial Baptist church and the Silver Street school kitchens will open Thursday at 9 a. m. Mrs. C. V. Hudson will be in charge at the school and Mrs. L. A. Axe will be at the church. Mrs. Axe will substiutte for the day for Mrs. H. L. Brobeck, who will be out of the city.

The Federation will furnish the lids and can rubbers. There is still a need for jars, Mrs. Uhl said this morning, and persons having extra jars have been asked to take them to the church or school, or to leave them at the Y. M. C. A.

The Aid societies and Parent-Teacher associations of the school and church will assist the women of the federation in teaching the women the art of canning.

DEMOCRATS AT PARK

Party Plans Outing for This Afternoon and Tonight

An outing featured by a ball game and a picnic supper was to be held at Lincoln park this afternoon and tonight by Marion county Democrats. The affair is sponsored by the Marion County Democratic Club, and is expected to attract between 300 and 400 persons.

Contests and games were to feature the afternoon program. After attending recreation ball games on the Lincoln park diamonds, a picnic supper will be held.

A short political play will be given by members of the club.

dence which might have altered the original verdict, or upon proof that the prosecuting attorney had been guilty of misconduct.

The commission appended 14 recommendations to its report. Among them were suggestions for a wider use of "administration rather than arrest"; a more general use of "summons instead of arrests" in petty prosecutions; waivers of jury trial in criminal cases; examinations of jurors by the court rather than the counsel; and increase in the common-law powers of trial judges.

Considerable space was devoted to the needs of raising the standards of the country's inferior courts, characterized as "conspicuously the least satisfactory part of our judicial system."

Methods Criticized

The commission said: "The bad physical surroundings, the confusion, the want of decorum, the undignified, offhand disposition of cases at high speed, the frequent suggestions of something working behind the scenes, involved in casual conferences of magistrates and politician lawyers, not audible to the public in attendance—in short the atmosphere of the inferior criminal courts—create in the minds of observers a suspicion of the whole process of law enforcement."

The commission also criticized the press, asserting that the difficulty in obtaining impartial juries was enhanced by "what often amounts to trial in advance." It added that some newspapers have "assumed to set forth in advance the evidence to be adduced."

In his individual report, Lemann dissented from this statement as well as one that modern business life, coupled with frequent elections and numerous jury terms "call for more than the citizens may reasonably be expected to do."

"Such statements may be well founded," Lemann said, "but no facts brought to my attention would permit me to join in their confident assertion."

AIDS TAXPAYERS

Inheritance Levy Causes 20 Per Cent Rate Cut in Ohio Town.

By United Press

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., July 15—A 20 per cent slash in the St. Clairsville tax rate was made possible today when the estate of the late Conrad W. Troll of Cleveland and St. Clairsville paid a $28,393 inheritance tax. Troll, a reputed millionaire coal operator, died eight months ago.

After receiving word that the inheritance tax had been paid and the town would receive half of the payment, council met in special session and reduced the 1932 levy for municipal purposes to one-half of the 1931 budget.

This brought the tax rate from $31 per $1,000 to approximately $25 per $1,000.

NATIONAL Democrats suggest holding their 1932 convention on the Pacific coast, in California, "Hoover's state." They call it a "brave gesture." More than that, it would be an educational expedition.

Take a Democrat across the continent, let him see the seals, "with piteous bark," on the rocks outside of San Francisco's Golden Gate, the oil, oranges and real estate dealers. Let him know all the country between the Atlantic and the Pacific, not forgetting the great new dam under construction, and he would come back a wiser Democrat, with a broader view.

IN THE NEXT 30 months Uncle Sam will build ten "destroyers," small, swift ships of 1,500 tons, planned to destroy submarines. They will cost forty-nine million five hundred thousand dollars.

In those 30 months a foreign country could build 20 airplanes, 10 high-speed planes carrying small bombs, 10 heavy bombers that could destroy our 10 new destroyers, also a few cruisers and battleships, and cost less than one million dollars.

However, governments, especially army and navy men, learn slowly. They are like the English king who, after the musket, with powder and ball, came in, said England must always rely on her bows and arrows for defense. Powder and bullets would never amount to much.

POISON RUM FATAL TO HALF DOZEN MEN

Seventh Critically Ill, Eighth Missing in Pennsylvania Drinking Tragedy.

By The Associated Press

TAMAQUA, Pa., July 15—Six men were dead today and another critically ill from drinking an alcoholic preparation containing poison. Meanwhile state police were searching for an eighth man believed to have been a member of the group.

Daniel Evans, 54, staggered into police headquarters yesterday and said he was sick. Before he died he told police that some of his friends were ill at a camp on the outskirts of town. Officers found two men dead at the camp, and another dead at a nearby gasoline station. Later a motorist saw a man topple into a creek near the camp. He died soon after being taken to a hospital. The sixth man died at a hospital last night.

Although about 35 men were at the camp police said they were fairly certain only eight men comprised the group which had obtained the poison alcohol.

TEAR GAS BOMBS ROUT HOTEL GUESTS

Labor Trouble Blamed for Attacks Made During Shrine Assembly.

By United Press

CLEVELAND, O., July 15—More than 1,000 Shriners and their families fled from the lobby and mezzanine of Hotel Cleveland early today when fumes from a tear gas bomb was spread through the lobby.

Lavelle E. Pierce, manager of the hotel, was burned seriously when he picked up the missle and threw it from a window.

A short time later a similar rout of Shriners from Hotel Statler was prevented when Detective Henry Jankowski, picked up a bomb that had been left in the lobby.

Detectives attributed the bombs to the "lockout" of union cooks waiters and waitresses. Both hotels have refused to recognize the unions.

COMPENSATION COST INCREASED BY STATE

Employers Must Pay Higher Premium Rate, Industrial Commission Rules.

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 15—An increase of approximately 10 per cent in the basic premium rates which employers of labor will have to pay into the workmen's compensation fund during the ensuing year was announced today by the Ohio industrial commission.

The increase affects 43½ per cent of the classifications, while there were decreases in 10 per cent and 46½ per cent remain unchanged. Rates are adjusted July 1 of each year.

The increase was necessary, the commission explained, because of increased benefits for injured workmen under amendments to the law which became effective July 8; increases in medical costs; increased liability in interpretation of the law by the courts on appealed cases previously disallowed by the commission; decreasing wage levels, resulting from lower payrolls and premiums without a corresponding reduction in claims; increased burden on the fund by reason of employers failing to pay premiums and the inability to collect from them.

County Tax Duplicate To Be Cut $7,000,000

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, July 15—Tentative reappraisement figures now being tabulated by County Auditor C. C Metzger show a reduction in valuation on Crawford county real estate and buildings of from 10 to 22 per cent or an approximate reduction of $7 000,000 in the county tax duplicate

These figures however are subject to change by the state tax commission and the county board of review before whom hearings on individual valuations will be held before the new duplicate is finally determined and used for a basis for collection of taxes next December.

it was announced by Auditor Metzger.

Of this reduction Crestline is high for cities with a reduction of 11 per cent or $468,040. Galion's reduction is 10.2 per cent with a cut of $849,930 Tabulation of Bucyrus figures have not been completed but will average about 10 per cent reduction.

Rural property reduced 22 32 per cent will mean a cut to the duplicate of $4,680,450.

Reduced tax revenue will make necessary many new economy measures in the operation of county, township, municipal and school administrations.

M. GIBSON, NEIMEYER SMASH HOMERS TO CINCH FRAY; IRISH BATTLE WAY TO 1-0 DECISION

CARDINALS REPULSE LATEST THREAT BY BEATING ROBINS 3-2

National League Champs Stretch Lead to Five and One-Half Games.

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Due largely to the efforts of a cast-off shortstop and a rookie first baseman, neither of whom figured in Gabby Street's pre-season plans, the St. Louis Cardinals appear to have shaken off the latest threat to their supremacy in the National league.

Jake Flowers, obtained recently from the Brooklyn Robins, and Jim Collins, the walloping young first sacker who took over Jim Bottomley's post, continue to play bang-up ball for the champions. Flowers, batting in the lead-off position, hit a home run, a double and a single and scored two runs to help beat his former teammates, the Robins, 3 to 2, in yesterday's opener at St. Louis. Collins, batting at clean-up, got one of the seven hits the Cards managed off Dazzy Vance.

Frisch Double Wins

A veteran, Frankie Frisch, was the ultimate hero of the game, however. It was his double in the eighth that scored Watkins with the winning run. The victory placed the champions five and a half games in front of the second place New York Giants, and seven ahead of Brooklyn.

Guy Bush, young Chicago Cub righthander, turned back the Giants, 8 to 4, in the first game of the series at Wrigley field. Bush allowed only eight hits, four of which came in the ninth inning and produced all the Giants runs.

Pittsburgh scored a pair of victories over the Phillies, 9 to 4, and 4 to 3, the second engagement going 10 innings before the Pirates beat out Phil Collins. Heinie Meine held the Phils in the first bout while Paul Waner and Pie Traynor led an assault on three Phillie pitchers. Between them, the pair drove in seven runs.

Errors Beat Reds

Errors by Tony Cuccinello, youthful second baseman, cost the Cincinnati Reds a 3 to 2 defeat at the hands of the Boston Braves. Old Tom Zachary went the route to get the decision, even though he allowed two more hits than Si Johnson.

The Detroit Tigers, not at all impressed with the fact they were facing George Earnshaw, clubbed out a 12 to 3 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics, in the first of a five-game series. They fell on the Athletics ace for 11 of their 16 hits, including a home-run by Jonathan Stone, before he was relieved in the ninth. Herring kept the champions' 12 hits well scattered.

Bill Killifer's freshman infield again was very much in evidence as the St. Louis Browns scored a 5 to 3 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. Singles by Ferrell, Storti and Burns after Melillo had walked accounted for three runs in the sixth. Burns' blow drove in the last two. The same infield cut down the Red Sox last threat with a double play in the ninth.

Sox Beat Senators

The veteran Urban Faber displayed a bit of old time form in pitching the Chicago White Sox to a 9 to 1 victory over Washington. He allowed only five hits for seven innings and Pat Caraway blanked Washington the last two. Carl Reynolds drove in three Chicago runs with a triple and single.

Earl Averill and Lou Gehrig hit two home runs apiece as the Cleveland Indians and the New York Yankees divided a pair. Gehrig hit his twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth homers to help the Yanks win the first, 19 to 2. Averill's eighteenth four-bagger provided the winning runs as the Indians won the nightcap, 5 to 1. Lyn Lary, Yankee shortstop, celebrated his marriage earlier in the day by hitting a home run, double and single in the first game.

Sports Editor, The Star

AMID the din of a thousand spectators and the blare of the Calvary church band the Calvary Sunday school softball team sent the pennant hopes of the Epworth Bishops crashing earthward last night. The final score of the battle was 5-2 for Calvary.

Yes sir, ladies and gentlemen, it was one tough ball game until the last half of the sixth inning. The score up to that time was 3-2 for Calvary. Here it was that Myron Gibson and Jerry Neimeyer, two of the greatest long distance clouters playing ball on local sandlots were due to bat.

Two Hefty Wallops

Eddie Mautz, Bishop hurler who had pitched masterful ball up to this point, worked the count to two strikes on Gibson and then made a fatal error. He grooved a slow ball for the Calvary left fielder and before anyone reached the ball Gibson was credited with a home run in the scorebook. Jerry Neimeyer then wasted no time whatever in hoping on another of Eddie's slants for another four-base smash over the center fielder's head. Mautz then again took command of the situation and had the Calvary sluggers eating out of his hand the rest of the inning. But it was too late.

Yes sir, as I said before it was a good ball game and I hasten to add the better team won and that is detracting nothing from the work of the Bishops. The losers worked hard and played their best but that best was wasn't quite good enough. It was a battle of the pitchers from start to finish. Gruber wins the honors inasmuch as his slugging team-mates pounded out a victory behind him but there was little difference in the pitchers' performances.

Irish Win Thriller

Calvary and the Bishops didn't steal the whole show by any means yesterday, Trinity Baptist and St. Mary staging another battle de luxe with the score ending 1-0 in favor of the Irish. The victory puts the green-shirted team up in a deadlock for second with the Bishops and keeps them within shooting distance of the pennant should the leaders falter at any later stage of the race.

It was Gunder vs. Applegett in this fray and both of them deserve a lot of credit. A walk and an error in the first inning gave the Irish a single run and as far as scoring was concerned the ball game was completed right there. With a one run margin, Gunder was invincible. Applegett was just as good too in case you're interested but that one slip in the first frame cost the battle. They might be playing yet if it hadn't been for that.

Gunder allowed the Baptists exactly four safe hits while Applegett was nicked for only a pair of bingles. The defeat drops the Trinity from consideration in the race for the pennant. Mathematically it is still possible for the Baptists to win the flag but for all practical purposes Trinity may as well begin building for next season.

Other Two Slugfests

The other two games played yesterday were in direct contrast to the above two. Lee Street took the Lutherans into camp in a free hitting setto 7-6 and John Clark's Epworth No. 1 nine plastered a 13 to 7 beating on the Epworth Seniors.

The winners of these two games were never much in doubt although the Lutherans put up a stiff battle before succumbing to Lee Street. Until the final frame Clark's proteges had the Seniors hopelessly beaten but a rally brought in four runs which made the score look like more of a ball game.

Batteries and score by innings:

2,100 SEE GAMES

If there is anyone in Marion who has doubts concerning the popularity of recreation baseball they might take a look at the estimated attendance figures of yesterday's games in the No. 1 Sunday school league.

The Calvary-Epworth Bishop game drew the biggest gate of the day, at least 1,000 persons jamming the Shovel Athletic field for the game. The Trinity Baptist-St. Mary game was second with 600. Third in line was the Epworth No. 1-Epworth Senior game with nearly 300 and approximately 200 saw Lee Street play the Lutherans. Full details of these games are to be found elsewhere on this page.

Larrupin' Lou

LOU GEHRIG

When it comes to figuring honors for home runs this season it is just possible that Lou Gehrig will be found heading the list. Gehrig clouted his 21th and 25th yesterday in a game with Cleveland. This gives him a lead over all the other sluggers of both leagues.

LOUISVILLE GAINS BY DEFEATING BREWERS IN NINTH INNING 4-1

Columbus Drops Wild Hitting Fray to Minneapolis Millers 14-12.

BY WILLIAM WEEKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, July 15 Louisville invaded St Paul for its "crucial" series with the Saints today, trailing the league leaders by four and one-half games and primed for a desperate effort to make it four straight in the set.

The Colonels yesterday sneaked up a half-game by trimming Milwaukee, 4 to 1, while the Saints were idle. The victory was obtained in the ninth inning when Al Sothoron's club scored three runs to break up a pitching battle between Bob Weiland and Fred Stiely. The rally followed a decision which Manager Marty Berghammer of the Brewers, protested so long and so loud as to cause his banishment. Stiely had given the Colonels only three hits until the ninth. Art Shires drove in the Brews' only run in the first inning.

Collecting 21 hits off five Minneapolis pitchers only helped Columbus to come close. The Millers utilized 14 hits to good advantage and won by 14 to 12, to make it four out of five in the series. Wildness on the part of Columbus pitchers helped the Millers, eight walks and a hit batsman being contributed. Elmer Yoter, with four singles, led the Red Buds at bat, while Eddie Sicking, Bob Meusel and Ernie Smith got three hits apiece for the Millers.

The batting of Treadway, Marquardt and Grigsby, each of whom connected safely three times, along with good pitching by Pete Donohue, gave Kansas City a 7 to 3 decision over Indianapolis, in the final of their series.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

UNLESS Jupiter Pluvius takes it on himself to put a stop to baseball proceedings everything is all set for the big double header softball program at Lincoln park at 6 p. m. today. The Huber and Serv-U-Wel teams will start the festivities at 6 p. m. followed by the Presbyterians and Irish immediately after. The first game will go seven innings and will stop at that time regardless of the score. A tie game at that time will remain a tie.

Figuring on a tough battle in both starts four umpires have been named to officiate. The officials for the Presbie-Irish game will be Roseberry, Hinklin, Stoner and Welch. For the Huber-Grocers game they will be Smallwood, Murphy, Wylie and Rice.

Every time there is a benefit ball game staged at Lincoln park by the city commission there are a number of individuals who make a supreme effort to pull a One-Eyede Connolly stunt of crashing the gate. Needless to add, many get away with it.

The proceeds of these games are going to an excellent cause. Two softball players have been injured seriously recently and the money will be used to assist in paying the costs of the accidents. The admission is only a dime. There is no one who cannot afford to pay that much. If there is a drop of sportsmanship in a person, that individual will pay his way through the Lincoln park portals. There is no one on the complimentary list today. Even the officials have signified a willingness to pay to see the game. The official scorers of the games will also plunk down their admission to get into the park. And this includes the writer of this column.

When the Presbyterian and Irish teams line up for the game tonight spectators will be surprised to see some strange faces in the Presbyterian lineup. This is due to no fault on the part of the Presbie manager and is not done with the view of running in some "ringers" for the game.

Don Shoemaker, Presbyterian pitcher, who also pitches for the Erie Traffic club was forced to go to Crestline to pitch a game for the railroaders. "Fish" Herring and Bobby Zahn, two outfielders, also members of the Gasco club of the Industrial league were forced to play out of-town with the Industrial team. As a result Don Lindsey, St. Paul Lutheran pitcher, will occupy the mound for the Presbies and Johnny Rife of the Christian No. 1 team will be in the outfield. Only two outfielders will be used in the game.

GERMAN UNLIKELY TO FIGHT THIS YEAR

Champ's Eye Injured, He Says, So Carnera Bout Probably Off.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 15 — Max Schmeling's proposed heavyweight title defense against Primo Carnera in September apparently is definitely off the books.

"Der Maxie" cabled Joe Jacobs, his manager, here yesterday that his left eye had become seriously affected by the punches he received in his successful battle against Young Stribling and that Berlin eye specialists had warned him he must take a complete rest for two or three months.

Though definite abandonment of the Schmeling-Carnera bout has not yet been announced, most boxing critics were of the opinion that it would not be held this year, if at all. Jacobs, himself, said he thought there was little or no chance that Schmeling would be able to go through with the match in September. Jacobs was to go into conference with William B Saxe of Madison Square Garden's legal department today and it was possible announcement would be made that the bout would be dropped.

In the event such a decision is reached, it was regarded as unlikely that Schmeling would defend his title again before next June with a faint possibility that the German might be matched against some outstanding contender, possibly Carnera or the winner of the Jack Sharkey-Mickey Walker bout, in the south next winter.

Specialists at Berlin, according to Schmeling's cable, found the champion's eye-ball infected and the iris badly scratched.

There have been repeated reports ever since Jacobs agreed to the Carnera bout, that the battle would not take place. Some observers recalled that in 1930, after he had beaten Jack Sharkey on a foul, Schmeling agreed to a return bout and then went back to Germany. From there, a little later, he announced that injuries resulting from the low blow that gained him the victory on a foul prevent him from going through with a return match.

MARION BEATEN

Darnell Whiffs 17 But Columbus C. & O. Nine Wins 4-3.

Despite the fact that Darnell, local pitcher, struck out 17 batters the C & O. railroad team of Marion lost yesterday afternoon to the Columbus C. & O. railroaders 4-3. The victory decided the division championship of the road. Koontz, catcher, and Grube, shortstop for Marion, crashed out home runs for the locals. Two homers were also collected by Columbus batters. Koontz allowed four hits.

Batteries for the game were: Columbus, Cameron, Durk and James; for Marion, Darnell and Koontz.

YESTERDAY'S STARS
By The Associated Press

Frankie Frisch, Cardinals — Tripled in eighth to drive in run that beat Robins, 3-2.

Guy Bush, Cubs — Scattered Giants' eight hits, collected two himself to drive in two runs, score one, and win, 8-4.

Paul Waner, Pirates—Drove in four runs with double and single against Phillies in first game and scored winning tally in second game on Brame's single in 10th.

Tom Zachary, Braves—Checked Reds with nine hits to win, 3-2.

Marty McManus and Mark Koenig, Tigers—Collected three hits apiece as Tigers walloped Athletics.

Lou Gehrig, Yankees—Clouted 24th and 25th homers against Indians.

Mel Harder, Indians—Held Yanks to eight hits to win second game, 5-1.

Irving Burns, Browns—His single in sixth drove in two runs needed by Red Sox.

Urban Faber and Pat Caraway, White Sox—Held Senators to five

THIMBLE THEATER — BY SEGAR

I WANT YOU TO DEAD AIM- WE MUST NOT MAKE A MESS OF THIS
IN ANOTHER MINUTE, MY FRIEND, POPEYE WILL BE DEAD- WORRY! WORRY! HEY, FLUNKIE, BRING ME A COMIC SHEET. I MUST GET MY MIND OFF OF THIS HORRIBLE EXECUTION
DO YOU WANT A BLINDFOLD, OR WILL YOU TAKE IT STRAIGHT?
STRAIGHT! ONLY COWARDS WEAR BLIND-FOLDS WHEN THEY GETS SHOT
READY- AIM-FIRE!

BRINGING UP FATHER — BY GEORGE McMANUS

DIDN'T I TELL YOU NEVER TO INTERRUPT ME WHEN I AM SINGING?
BUT MAGGIE THE JANITOR WUZ JUST AT THE DOOR AN' SAID THAT THE MAN UPSTAIRS IS COMPLAININ ABOUT YOUR SINGIN'-
WELL YOU GO RIGHT UP AND LET HIM KNOW WE JUST MOVED IN AND THAT I DON'T INTEND TO STOP SINGING FOR HIM OR ANY ONE ELSE- HE'S SOME IGNORANT FOOL WHO HAS NO TASTE FOR ANY ART- GO TALK TO HIM-
WELL- WHAT IS IT? WHY DID YOU RING MY BELL?
WAIT UNTIL I STOP LAUGHIN' DON'T YOU KNOW ME-?
THE GUY UPSTAIRS WHO COMPLAINED WAS YOUR SINGIN' TEACHER TWO YEARS AGO- WHEN I GOT THROUGH LAUGHIN' I GAVE HIM A PUNCH IN THE NOSE-

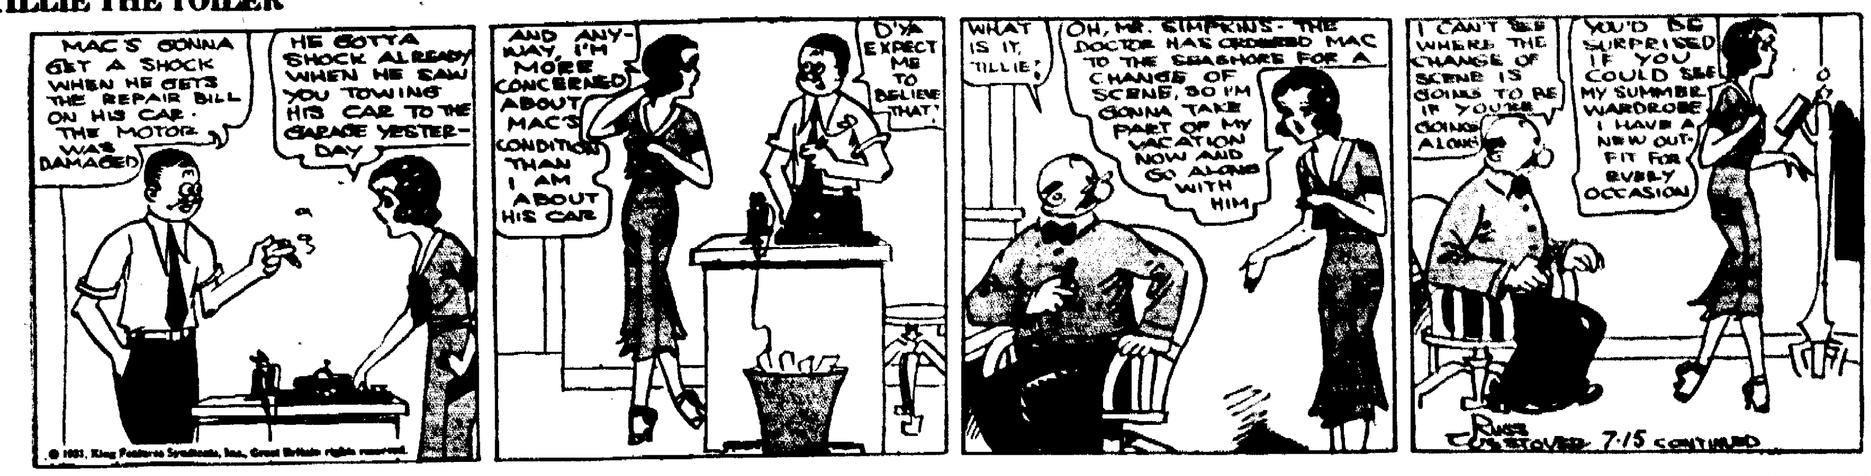
TILLIE THE TOILER — BY RUSS WESTOVER



MAC'S GONNA GET A SHOCK WHEN HE GETS THE REPAIR BILL ON HIS CAR. THE MOTOR WAS DAMAGED
HE GOTTA SHOCK ALREADY WHEN HE SAW YOU TOWING HIS CAR TO THE GARAGE YESTERDAY
AND ANYWAY, I'M MORE CONCERNED ABOUT MAC'S CONDITION THAN I AM ABOUT HIS CAR D'YA EXPECT ME TO BELIEVE THAT?
WHAT IS IT, TILLIE?
OH, MR. SIMPKINS- THE DOCTOR HAS ORDERED MAC TO THE SEASHORE FOR A CHANGE OF SCENE, SO I'M GONNA TAKE PART OF MY VACATION NOW AND GO ALONG WITH HIM
I CAN'T SEE WHERE THE CHANGE OF SCENE IS GOING TO BE IF YOU'RE GOING ALONG
YOU'D BE SURPRISED IF YOU COULD SEE MY SUMMER WARDROBE I HAVE A NEW OUTFIT FOR EVERY OCCASION

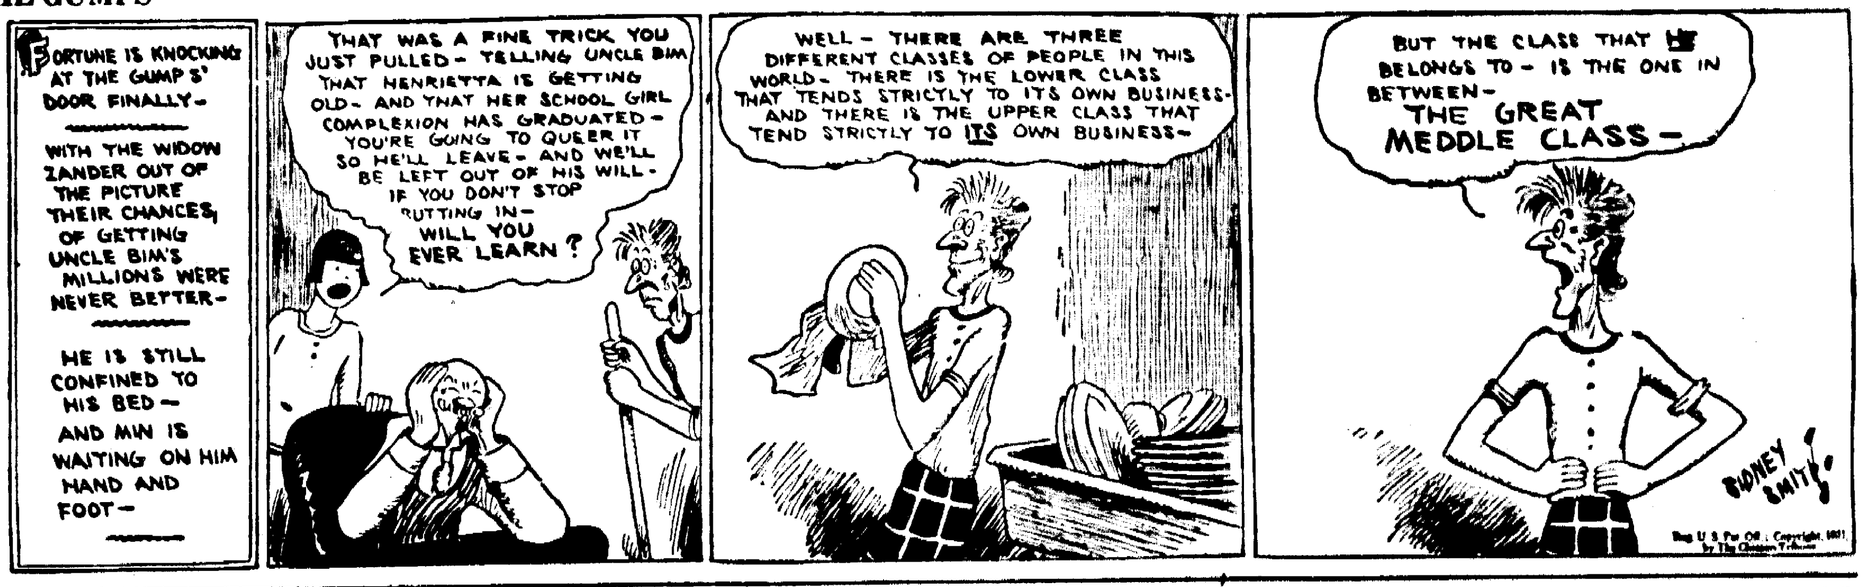
THE GUMPS — BY SIDNEY SMITH



FORTUNE IS KNOCKING AT THE GUMP'S' DOOR FINALLY-WITH THE WIDOW ZANDER OUT OF THE PICTURE THEIR CHANCES, OF GETTING UNCLE BIM'S MILLIONS WERE NEVER BETTER-
HE IS STILL CONFINED TO HIS BED- AND MIN IS WAITING ON HIM HAND AND FOOT-
THAT WAS A FINE TRICK YOU JUST PULLED- TELLING UNCLE BIM THAT HENRIETTA IS GETTING OLD- AND THAT HER SCHOOL GIRL COMPLEXION HAS GRADUATED- YOU'RE GOING TO QUEER IT SO HE'LL LEAVE- AND WE'LL BE LEFT OUT OF HIS WILL- IF YOU DON'T STOP BUTTING IN- WILL YOU EVER LEARN?
WELL- THERE ARE THREE DIFFERENT CLASSES OF PEOPLE IN THIS WORLD- THERE IS THE LOWER CLASS THAT TENDS STRICTLY TO ITS OWN BUSINESS- AND THERE IS THE UPPER CLASS THAT TEND STRICTLY TO ITS OWN BUSINESS-
BUT THE CLASS THAT I BELONGS TO- IS THE ONE IN BETWEEN- THE GREAT MEDDLE CLASS-

TOOTS AND CASPER — BY JIMMY MURPHY

I'LL BE GLAD WHEN THE ELECTION IS OVER, BUTTERCUP! WE HAVEN'T SEEN MUCH OF PAPA THE LAST WEEK! HE'S BEEN SO BUSY TRYING TO ELECT COLONEL HOOPER! THEY'RE PALS! ANYBODY CAN TELL THAT BECAUSE THEY USUALLY QUARREL SO MUCH
WELL, TOOTS! TOMORROW IS ELECTION DAY AT THE GOOD-FELLOWS' CLUB! GET ME UP AT SEVEN IN THE MORNING SO I CAN VOTE EARLY! I'M GONNA STICK CLOSE TO THE CLUB ALL DAY TOMORROW TO MAKE SURE THAT THE HUGO TROTT GANG DON'T SLIP OVER ANY FAST ONES ON COLONEL HOOPER!
I CAN HARDLY WAIT TO HEAR THE RESULT, CASPER! I'M SO EXCITED! I GUESS EVERYBODY IS!
WHO WILL WIN- COLONEL HOOPER OR HUGO TROTT? IT LOOKS LIKE A TOSS-UP TO ME! WELL, I'LL LET THE TWO CANDIDATES DO THE WORRYING! I'M GOING TO GET MY BEAUTY SLEEP NOW!
IF I WIN, I'LL BE THE HAPPIEST MAN IN THE WORLD! IF I LOSE — WELL, IF I DO I MAY MOVE AWAY FROM THIS TOWN! I'VE GOT A LOT OF PRIDE! GOSH! WILL TOMORROW NEVER COME?

SIFRITT WARNS OF MOSQUITO INVASION

Advises Marionites To Remove Breeding Places of Insects.

With the season for mosquitoes at hand. Dr. N. Sifritt, city county health commissioner, today advised Marionites to use every possible means to keep the mosquito population of the city at a minimum by destroying the breeding places.

Garbage cans containing moisture which are left uncovered, and tin cans in a refuse pile which hold water after rains are ideal places for the winged pests to breed, Sifritt pointed out.

Mosquitos are not only annoying for the swelling and irritation produced by their bites, but also are conveyors of disease, Dr. Sifritt said.

Kerosene or oil on small bodies of water in which mosquitos commonly breed will kill the insects and prevent further use of the water for breeding purposes. The small pools of stagnant water as well as cans or other containers filled with water and exposed to the air should be treated with oil or kerosene.

The mosquito presented a serious threat today when Columbus residents discovered that mosquito bites on legs of their pet canaries proved fatal to the birds. The danger can be overcome by wrapping the bird cage with mosquito netting.

TWO CAST BALLOTS

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Holdridge Register To Cast "Absent" Votes.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Holdridge of 467 Forest street are the first Marionites to vote in the primary this year. They cast absent voters' ballots at the office of the board of elections in the Marion Building & Savings & Loan Co. building. The votes were taken this morning by C. G. Ritzler, deputy clerk of the board.

Approximately 100 Marion citizens eligible to vote in the primary election who will not be in Marion August 4 are expected to cast absent voters' ballots before the deadline August 1. Although the office of the board of elections was prepared to receive ballots of absent voters Sunday, only two cast this morning were the first this year.

COURT NEWS

Files Answer

An answer and cross petition in the Kenneth Osborne was filed in common pleas court today in the foreclosure of C. D. Schaffner, receiver for the Citizens Building & Loan Co. against E. W. Boyer and others. Osborn asserts that he obtained a judgment in municipal court for $118.75 against Boyer on April 1, 1928, and sets up the judgment as a lien against property involved in the foreclosure action. L. E. Mc[illegible] is counsel for Osborne.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

The dry weather of the last two weeks made itself felt on the markets today when short supplies of many of the local vegetables were apparent. Peas appeared to have suffered the most. Few were on the markets and those of an indifferent quality. Beans have suffered less and dealers were carrying fairly large supplies at two and three pounds for 25 cents

The berry crop also fell far below expectations due to the dry weather. Neither blackberries and raspberries were plentiful at any time during the last two weeks, the former held at around 20 cents and the latter at from 20 to 25 cents during the entire time.

Watermelons continue plentiful. Dealers were carrying large supplies today that were selling readily at from 40 to 65 cents. Cantaloupes are also plentiful and dealers report a good market at from 10 to 15 cents. Georgia peaches were note quite so plentiful today at three pounds for 25 cents.

TO STAND TRIAL ON CHARGE OF LARCENY

Harold Williams Pleads Not Guilty To Stealing Chickens.

Harold Williams, 33, alias Beecher Williams of 290 Kenton avenue, will stand trial in municipal court Thursday on a charge of chicken stealing. Williams was placed under $100 bond when he pleaded not guilty when arraigned yesterday.

Williams was arrested about 3:30 a. m. Monday by Sheriff C. C. Fye and Deputy M. E. Baldwin after he had been held a prisoner in an automobile by Edward Walters residing on the Delaware pike. Williams was covered by a shotgun in Walters' hands after the farmer had chased him 200 yards through the fields. Walters told Sheriff Fye he caught Williams in his chicken house.

Farmer "Acquaints" Officer with Law

A SOUTHERN Marion county farmer will investigate the identity of target shooters in the future before attempting to acquaint them with the law regarding the discharge of firearms near public highways as the resudt of an amusing incident yesterday afternoon.

M. E. Baldwin, deputy sheriff, went to the banks of the Scioto river south of here yesterday when he felt the need of target practice. Scarcely had he started firing at objects on the opposite bank when a farmer accosted him.

The deputy remained silent while the farmer told him he had no right to shoot on the highway, meantime taking the license number of the officer's car.

Confusion marked the face of the farmer when he was shown Baldwin's deputy sheriff badge. With a series of "Oh's" and a mumbled apology, he left Baldwin to complete his practice.

HINT SCHNEIDER MAY FILL VACANCY

Candidate for Fifth Ward Council Post May Be Appointed.

The appointment of J. B. Schneider of 369 south Prospect street, Democratic candidate for councilman from the fifth ward as a successor to John M. Schneider whose death occurred Saturday, was intimated this morning by C. E. Merkel, president of council.

"While the appointment of a successor to Councilman Schneider must be decided by council, there is not much reason to believe that anyone but the present candidate from the fifth ward will be their choice," Mr. Merkel said.

It is expected the matter of the appointment of a successor will be taken up by council at the adjourned meeting Thursday night.

Schneider was the only candidate of either party to enter the race for the fifth ward council post at the August primaries.

ROTARIANS, WIVES GUESTS AT PICNIC

Dr. and Mrs. Sawyer Entertain at Outing at White Oaks Grove.

Members of the Marion Rotary club with their wives, who are known in Rotary circles as Rotaryanns, were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Carl W. Sawyer at the annual picnic party at White Oaks farm last night.

Honors in contests which featured the program from 5 to 6:30 p. m. were won by Mrs. Charles Weil who won first place in a ball throwing contest and Mrs. Wendell Wiant who carried off first honors in a potato race, while Mrs. A. J. Berry, proved to be the champion in a marshmallow chewing contest.

A picnic dinner at 6:30 p. m. held in a grove at the farm, was a feature of the affair. A short musical program followed the dinner and the program closed with the showing of moving pictures taken at the dedication of the Harding memorial.

Find No Trace of "Rented" Automobile

No trace of the coupe belonging to the Yellow Taxi Cab Co., and which is thought was rented by a Delaware man wanted for a filling station robbery, has yet been found.

A young man answering the description of the Delaware man rented the car Monday morning just a few minutes before police here received word of the robbery and a description of the man.
